Deadline looms for Phillips boathouse buy

By BILL KIRK

Town has competitor for 8-acre riverfront property

Town officials are scrambling to come up with $1 million to buy the old Phillips Academy boathouse on the Merrimack River after the private prep school said last week it has an offer for the property from another buyer.

On Monday night, selectmen went into secret session to discuss whether to put a bid on the property on behalf of the Conservation Commission, using money approved at last May's Town Meeting for property acquisition.

But it's unclear whether a decision was reached, and now town officials are unsure what's going to happen.

The Andover Companies, which is adjacent to the boathouse property, made a $1 million offer on the property to Phillips several weeks ago. The town has wanted to buy the property for the last two years, but never made an offer. "We don't know what

Phillips is going to do," said Assistant Town Manager Steve Bucuzzo, who is serving as acting town manager while Regional "Buzz" Stapeczynski is out of town at a conference. "News of the sale of the boathouse came out of nowhere. They are trying to force the town into some sort of deal that the town isn't in a position to make because of state law."

Members of the Conservation Commission attended Monday's selectmen's meeting, hoping to be heard on the $700,000 needed to finish multipurpose room

Members of the Board of Selectmen stood on the dirt underneath the steel girders of the Cormier Youth Center in the twilight Monday, trying to envision where certain rooms would be located and how the project would come together over the next six or seven months.

Chris Huntress, chairman of the building committee for the $6.1 million project, explained that the goal was for "substantial completion" by March 2015.

Most of the interior of the 21,000-square-foot building will be done by then, but the contractor on the project is working feverishly to get the structure sealed up by the time the snow flies.

Mike Cronin, senior project manager for Dagle Construction, said the steel structure of the main building and the gym will be up by the end of this week, and the roof will be on in about two weeks. Wall panels will be installed over the next few months.

"It's a complex project,"

Senate candidate seeks 4 debates

Alex Vispoli Barbara L'Italien

Republican state Senate candidate Alex Vispoli is calling on Democratic opponent Barbara L'Italien to take part in four debates before election day in November.

L'Italien responded that while she was interested in debating Vispoli, at the moment she's busy talking to voters.

The two Andover residents are going head to head vying to replace outgoing Sen. Barry Finegold in November, who will be leaving office at the end of the year.

Vispoli, a member of the Board of Selectmen, issued a press release last week that included a letter he wrote to L'Italien, who is a member of the School Committee.

"I am writing to request that we agree to debate four times between now and the election," Vispoli wrote.

He said he was seeking one debate in each community in the district, which includes Andover, Dracut, Lawrence and Tewksbury.

"In this day and age of the 30-second sound bites, I believe that it is up to us to lead by example," he wrote. "We can start by agreeing to discuss the issues at a series of debates. There are numerous important issues confronting us; each deserves more than a sound bite or a special interest group mailing."

L'Italien, who won a Democratic primary over two opponents from Lawrence last week, issued a statement through her campaign manager.

"Regarding debates, Barbara will evaluate every debate opportunity as it arises and looks forward to a debate forum to showcase the differences between her and Alex Vispoli," an email from her campaign manager said. "Right now, however, Barbara's priority is speaking

About 800 employees, most of them wearing green Schneider Electric T-shirts over their work clothes, gathered under a circus-sized tent outside 800 Federal St. last week to celebrate the opening of a new research and development lab and the U.S. headquarters of the multi-billion-dollar international company.

Gov. Deval Patrick, along with a dozen or so state and local officials, joined Schneider North America CEO Laurent Vernerey in welcoming the workers to the Merrimack Valley.

"I share in the excitement of opening this new home here in Andover," Patrick said to thunderous applause at the Sept. 10 ceremony. "It's not just an investment in our commonwealth and our economy, but it's an investment above all in our future."

Schneider Electric, which is based in France, but has facilities all over the world, held a ribbon-cutting for what it called its Boston One campus, which will not only be the company's main R&D lab, but is now the North American headquarters for the company.

The company's headquarters had been located outside Chicago, but Vernerey said

Beware: Flushing to bring brown water to taps

By BILL KIRK

bkirk@andovertownsman.com

Andover residents and businesses located north and west of Route 133 can expect brown water starting in October and lasting for about a month, the public works chief said Monday.

Chris Cronin, director of plant and facilities for the town, told the Board of Selectmen that for the first time in Andover's history, a water main flushing program will be implemented.

He said the program, which will start Oct. 1 and continue into November, is needed to clean out the pipes that have become gummed up with years of mineral deposits and sediments.

Most other communities routinely flush water mains, but Andover has never done so, he said.

"Flushing is something we have to do," he said. "We haven't done it before because residents don't like having discolored water. But we can't kick this can down the road anymore. We have to do it."

He said the purpose of the program is to "flush debris that is in the walls of the pipes out through the hydrants," he said. The operation will be closely monitored by engineers from Camp Dresser &

McKee, but Cronin anticipates there will be a number of complaints as a result.

"We are being cautious," he said. "We are not doing this during shower or breakfast time, and won't start until 8:30 a.m. We can modify it as it goes."

Knowing that residents will be affected, Cronin said he was looking for the selectmen's support.

"You are going to get phone calls as to why a load of laundry was put in the washing machine without knowing" about rusty water, he said. "We'll have trucks driving around town with rust remover. We can drop off rust remover for people."

Selectman Paul Salafia asked if the flushing could result in water main breaks, and Cronin replied, "absolutely." In fact, a water main did break during a pilot of the flushing program. Cronin said he expected more such breaks, but was hoping for the best.

"We have never done this program before," he said. "We are going to be learning quite a bit. We believe this is going to be very successful."

The other possible consequence of the program is that there may be a strong odor of chlorine near the water treatment plant as well as the water storage tank on Wood Hill.

Meanwhile, the town is also working on a fire hydrant replacement program.

Cronin told selectmen that town workers have replaced 186 hydrants this year and identified 200 more that need to be replaced. An additional 200 need major maintenance, he said.

"We will have replaced 300 hydrants by the end of the program," he said.

By next spring, he added, there will be fewer hydrants being replaced and more maintenance occurring.

directly to voters in all four communities about the issues that matter most to working families, which is what she has been doing since May."

Vispoli did not face a Republican opponent in last week's primary. He ran for the seat in 2012, but lost in the primary to Paul Adams, who was then defeated in the final election by incumbent Barry Finegold, also of Andover. He has been a member of the Board of Selectmen since 2004.

L'Italien won last week's primary with 53 percent of the overall votes cast, or 6,684 votes. She defeated her two Lawrence opponents: Pavel Payano, a Lawrence School Committee member, who received 4,532 votes, or 36.2 percent of the votes, and Doris Rodriguez, a state and local government employee, who finished third, with 1,304, or 10.4 percent of the vote.

She placed first in Dracut, Tewksbury and Andover, but came in second in Lawrence.

L'Italien has been involved in local and state politics for years. From 2003 to 2011, she was the state representative for the 18th Essex District, which includes parts of Andover, Tewksbury, Boxford and North Andover.

She was defeated in 2010 by Republican Jim Lyons of Andover, who currently holds the seat. L'Italien then went to work for state Treasurer Steve Grossman before quitting that job in 2012 to run for her old state representative seat, losing the election to Lyons.

Since then, L'Italien has worked as a social worker for Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley.

Vispoli and L'Italien have known each other for years, their children taking part in many of the same activities when they were younger.

that he is moving his office to Andover.

"The most important statement is that this is now the North American headquarters," he said, adding that the only job being transferred from Chicago is his own job. He said the company's corporate structure is set up so that top executives are located throughout the country.

Patrick said the company's decision to locate in Andover shows the strength of the region's energy and education sectors.

"Andover is mighty," he said. "It's an important part of that cluster."

Several town officials were on hand for the grand opening gala, including Town Manager Reginald "Buzz" Stapczynski, who said he was "happy to have Schneider Electric in Andover as one of our nameplate companies."

He said that while Andover and the Merrimack Valley are often identified as a hub for life sciences, the energy sector has also grown in the region.

"This just adds to that," he said. "This is pretty impressive."

Selectman Brian Major noted that the Board of Selectmen granted the company a five-year tax incentive, known as a TIF, which enabled the company to save money up-front while making a $24 million investment in the community.

Gov. Deval Patrick shakes hands last week with Mike Bielby, Schneider Electric's director of Buildings EcoStructure Labs, in the company's interactive information center at the new research and development Boston One Campus in Andover.

"The taxes on the facility stop at the old tax bill of $183,000," he said. "After three years, it starts to go up, and by year six, they will be paying 100 percent of their tax bill."

He estimated the tax bill then would be around $400,000.

According to a press release sent out by Schneider Electric, its Andover facility was designed to "create an environment that encourages collaboration with customers, R&D engineers and employees. The new campus was also built with the company's vision of sustainable design and energy efficiency."

The Boston One Campus incorporates approximately $8 million of Schneider

"The new Boston One campus will serve as Schneider Electric's North American R&D hub, driving global innovation in collaboration with our four existing global R&D centers located in Bangalore, Shanghai, Grenoble and Monterrey," said Pascal Brosset, Schneider Electric's senior vice president of innovation and chief technology officer.

Andover pauses to remember its Sept. 11 victims

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmen.com

Amid the somber notes of the bagpipe, town leaders, residents and students congregated near the entrance to the Town Offices building last Thursday on the 13th anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks.

Together, they were reminded of the many choices made that morning back in 2001.

"Every day, people are inundated with decisions, some big and some small, that affect the outcome of our lives," selectmen Chairman Daniel Kowalski said. "Many times, others make decisions that affect our lives. That's what happened on Sept. 11, 2001."

While it was the decision of a terrorist group to strike out at the American people, Kowalski said, it was the countless decisions of heroes who worked to save the lives of strangers on that day.

"We remember 9/11 because of the people who sacrificed their lives so that others could survive," he said.

The ceremony mourned the four local victims of the terrorist attacks and praised the national heroes of the country's darkest day.

Christopher Morrison died in the World Trade Center while attending a conference on its 107th floor. Millie Naiman and Betty Ong were on American Airlines Flight 11. Naiman was en route to visit her grandchildren in California and Ong was working as a flight attendant. Len Taylor was on American Airlines Flight 77, traveling for business.

Town Offices building.

"We will never forget the brave men and women of our armed forces who stand watch to protect us and we, the Town of Andover, will never forget that there are Andover families directly and personally touched by the events of Sept. 11," Director of Veterans' Services Michael Burke said. "... Each wreath is a symbol that we will never forget."

"Though they try to take security with the things they've done and said, all their acts of inhumanity bring unity instead," Murphy read.

"So we stand here as a family. One heart, one soul, one voice. We are challenged by this moment, and united here by choice."

The program also featured master piper Amy McGlothlin's rendition of "Amazing Grace."

Merrimack College neighbors request increased patrols

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmen.com

The residents surrounding Merrimack College — where a proposed dorm project has raised the ire of homeowners — have asked local police to increase patrols of their neighborhoods.

Over a span of 38 minutes on Tuesday, Sept. 9, Andover police twice checked the Rock Ridge Road neighborhood that sits just feet from Merrimack's campus.

With the return of hundreds of college students to campus in late August, and looming plans to build four new dormitories at the school, residents requested an increased presence by the Police Department, police Commander Charles Heseltine said.

"We have always patrolled the surrounding streets of Merrimack College," Heseltine said. "The neighbors have requested that we patrol it more."

Heseltine expects the trend will continue for the foreseeable future.

The plea from neighbors comes in the midst of the battle against the multi-building dorm project planned for Austin Field at the Elm Street entrance to the college next to the neighborhood.

Neighbors claim that crime committed by students, and their visiting friends, has impacted their lives as homeowners on the adjacent streets.

Recently, residents of the area requested that crime and incident reports involving college students be recorded by Andover police as taking place at Merrimack College, rather than on Fox Hill Road, as was previously the case.

Recently, Andover police were asked by campus police, who have their own department, to help with protesters of the dorm project who were interfering with traffic and handing out pamphlets.

Last Monday, Sept. 8, Andover police responded to a call from neighboring Woodcliff Road, reporting that a dozen college students were in the area on a golf cart, yelling and screaming. Police who responded said the individuals were leaving an event, with no sign of a golf cart or screaming observed.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Nicholas T. Papapetros, DMD, FAGD

OLYMPIANS FACE BIG HURDLE

What effect can energy drinks, gels, bars, and frequent snacking have on athletes' teeth? The dental director for the International Olympic Committee reveals that a great many Olympic athletes have broken teeth, abscesses, decay, and other dental issues. The problem is that many of them consume acidic, sugary drinks and energy bars that attack teeth while their dehydrated bodies do not produce enough saliva to remineralize their tooth enamel. In addition, most Olympic athletes are ages 16 to 25 years old, which is the group at highest risk for tooth decay. As these young adults fly the family nest and abandon many of their healthy eating habits, they become more susceptible to tooth decay. Athletes and exercisers take careful note.

Dog trainer could face larceny charge

By JILL HARMACINSKI
Staff Writer

A hearing is scheduled for next month to determine if an Andover dog trainer should be charged with stealing a Haverhill couple's puppy he had in his care.

On Oct. 8, a clerk magistrate at Lawrence District Court will determine if William Connatser, 34, of 256 Beacon St., who is with Next Level K9, should be charged with larceny of property valued over $250 — with the property being a dachshund puppy, according to an application for a criminal complaint filed by Lawrence police officer Ivan Melendez.

Sean Devan and Jenaya Butler of Haverhill bought their puppy "Buddy" for $669 in early August from a Missouri breeder. The couple then hired Connatser to train the dog. They said they were referred to him through Thumbtack.com, a website similar to Angie's List.

But the couple said Buddy was only in Connatser's care on eight occasions before he disappeared on Aug. 21.

They said Connatser told them he'd been "doing errands" in Lawrence at various locations, including Merrimack and Union streets, before losing the dog.

In a previous interview with The Andover Townsman's sister paper, The Eagle-Tribune, Connatser said he put Buddy in a crate in the back of his truck that day. This, he said, was part of his training to get the dog used to riding in a vehicle.

He said he ran two errands and while Buddy was left unattended in the truck, somebody took him.

Connatser, during the previous interview, refused to say where he was when the dog was taken. He said he hired a lawyer, but refused to say who his attorney is.

Reached earlier this week, Connatser told a reporter to stop calling him.

"You are harassing me," Connatser said.

On his Next Level K9 business card, Connatser said he provides "Protection, Obedience and Training" services.

Two restaurants answer to health officials

By TIM LIMA

tlima@andovertownsmen.com

An Andover roast beef eatery has been given three months to resolve food safety and cleanliness concerns following four failed town inspections.

The owner of Phil's Roast Beef at 38 Andover St. was called before the Board of Health last week to address concerns dating back at least 10 months.

Board of Health Director Tom Carbone said the restaurant had failed four separate inspections conducted by four different inspectors, including one he did himself in November 2013.

Areas of concern involved workers handling food without gloves on and failing to use hand sanitizer, equipment in poor shape, and dirt and debris buildup.

In addition, the restaurant previously did not have a full-time employee who was ServSafe certified, as required by law. However, owner Phil Dres recently completed the course.

Carbone said prior to the show-cause hearing that the board initially tried to work with Dres privately to fix issues, but said not enough improvements had been made.

"It's been a long-term thing where we have tried to work with them to get things corrected, but it hasn't taken place," Carbone said.

Dres told the board at the hearing on Monday, Sept. 8, that he was working to address concerns. He shared photos of his restaurant to demonstrate the cleaning that had occurred and new equipment that he had purchased.

"I've cleaned every day, every morning, every night," he said. "I do the best that I can do. I know what my mistakes are and I am going to try to get rid of them."

Board members said one of Dres' main problems appeared to be his lack of faith or trust in his employees. Dres told health officials he is the only one who handles the food every day, even going as far as to call himself "Superman" for the work he does over the course of long days. According to Dres, he begins his work day at 7:30 a.m. and finishes at 8 p.m.

The Board of Health voted to keep the hearing open for three months, during which time Phil's Roast Beef will undergo another random inspection. Dres then will be invited to a meeting to discuss the results.

The Board of Health also met last week with the management of Bertucci's Italian Restaurant at 90 Main St. following cleanliness violations and a complaint of "moldy, old food."

Dan Greenberg, the senior area director of Bertucci's, said the company believes the complaint was called in by a disgruntled employee. Greenberg joined Adam Daneau, manager of the Andover restaurant, and other representatives from Bertucci's corporate office at the show-cause hearing.

"It's embarrassing to be here," Greenberg said. "And I can promise that we won't be here again."

Problems at the Andover restaurant involved cleanliness — something that Greenberg and Daneau said was a matter of employees not fully understanding what "clean" meant. He said a morning and evening cleaning chart has been created that will allow Daneau to monitor and inspect his restaurant and sign paperwork saying he has done so. Greenberg will be faxed a signed copy.

Greenberg also promised to make regular, bi-weekly visits to the restaurant to inspect its cleanliness and ensure that the business meets the company's high standards.

Earlier this month, Carbone said health officials had visited Bertucci's based on a complaint and detected issues that needed to be brought to the Board of Health. He added Bertucci's had been making progress in areas of concern.

Based on the steps Bertucci's had taken, the Board of Health voted unanimously to close last week's hearing without further action.

Carbone said the issues for both restaurants focused entirely on cleanliness, and did not involve food preparation or other food safety matters.

Brainstorming session on Town Yard this weekend

If you're not doing anything this Saturday morning, consider taking a walking/talking tour of the public works yard just off the downtown.

The Economic Development Council is hosting a meeting this weekend to develop ideas for how to redevelop the site if the town can acquire the money to build a new public services yard elsewhere in the community. Selectmen have been discussing the idea for a new public works facility, but can't agree on the price of the project.

In the meantime, the EDC, as it's known, has been pushing the idea of turning the old buildings and asphalt expanse at the current Town Yard into a so-called Transportation Oriented District, or TOD. It would be located in the general vicinity of the railroad station and the Town Yard.

"What this group is really doing is listening to you, to each other, to neighbors and to all interested citizens who are hoping to help develop this area creatively yet thoughtfully," EDC chairman Tim Vaill said in an email to supporters last week. "We started out listening to Northeastern's Barry Bluestone last fall about the demographic changes in Andover, and then to (Economic Development) Secretary Greg Bialecki in the spring concerning how the commonwealth can assist us. Later on this fall, we hope to have another 'Andover Tomorrow' session involving the town leadership."

The walking/brainstorming session begins this Saturday at 9 a.m. The meeting starts in the main shed at the Town Yard.

Following a series of five-minute talks by people involved in the potential redevelopment of the site, the group will then take a walk around the area "looking at the Town Yard, naturally, but also looking at the river, empty lots, the railroad, intersections, the existing buildings — as well as the challenges we face in improving the area," Vaill said.

YOUTH

Cronin said. "By late November, we expect it to be enclosed, with the systems turned on before the cold weather hits. We have no choice. We're up against it."

The project has been beset with delays, creating difficulties not only for the contractor, but also for the Andover Youth Foundation's fundraising efforts.

Bill Fahey, director of Andover Youth Services, said it will cost $800,000 to finish the interior of the building, primarily focused on what he called the "multipurpose room."

The Andover Youth Foundation already has about $100,000 in the bank to finish the interior of the building, and has another $700,000 to raise. Fahey joked during Monday night's tour that "anyone who wants to donate $1 million" should give him a call.

"It's a 21,000-square-foot building and of that, about 17,500 square feet will be finished by March," Fahey said. "I'm trying to raise money to finish off the 4,500-square-foot, multi-purpose room."

He said the multipurpose room will include a stage, a conference room, lighting and a sound system, as well as a workshop.

"My hope is we can raise the money by March so that the contractor finishing up the building could finish the multi-purpose room, too," he said.

Fahey said a series of delays in recent months led to a slowdown in fundraising efforts.

"Over the summer, there was a lot of frustration, since we thought the building would be up by the end of June," he said.

Donors are more enthusiastic when they can actually see the building taking shape, he added. He said he hoped that fundraising momentum would start to pick up now that the steel structure is up.

Meanwhile, Fahey is also looking ahead at staffing for his department. Currently, there are three employees, but he thinks more will be needed to provide the kind of programming he'd like to see at the new center.

At last spring's Town Meeting, voters approved $60,000 for a social worker to help out with anti-drug efforts in the community. Fahey said a social worker was on staff through the summer, but the employee recently left for another position elsewhere. He said he hopes to hire a replacement by the end of October.

Meanwhile, Fahey said he wants to propose more money in next year's budget to hire a youth worker to help implement programming at the new center.

"I'm hoping in the next budget cycle to have a youth worker," he said. "We are hoping to hire someone. We can't run the building with three of us."

matter, to no avail.

Commission members stood in the hallway during the executive session until one of them got a text message from someone inside the meeting saying their testimony wasn't needed.

Selectmen Chairman Dan Kowalski would not comment because the matter was discussed in closed session.

For the last two years, conservation officials have had their eye on the boathouse property, located on the Merrimack River adjacent to the Andover Companies, an insurance company at 95 Old River Road.

For years, the 8-acre site was the location for the Phillips Academy boathouse, where the school's crew team kept and launched its boats. Two years ago, the school moved to a new facility across the river in Methuen.

Since then, the property, which is also adjacent to town-owned conservation land, has been available.

At last spring's Town Meeting, conservation officials were able to convince voters to approve a warrant article that would allow the town to use $800,000 for the purchase of conservation property. A list of potential sites was included in the warrant article, with the boathouse property at or near the top of the list.

According to Conservation Commission member Floyd Greenwood, last Friday the town was told by someone at The Andover Companies that it was interested in purchasing the property for around $1 million.

Over the weekend, Phillips Academy notified the town it had one week to come up with a counteroffer.

The news came as a shock to Conservation Commission members, who were under the impression that the property would eventually be sold to the town.

"I don't know anyone who wasn't surprised," Greenwood said. "We have until Friday."

Greenwood said that in addition to the $800,000 approved by Town Meeting, there may be other conservation funds available to bring a full offer price closer to $1 million.

Phillips Academy Head of School John Palfrey confirmed Tuesday the school did get an offer from another buyer.

"Phillips Academy has been very interested in selling the boathouse property," he said. "I'd love to sell it to the town for conservation purposes. We are considering another offer for the property. We have long welcomed an offer from the town to acquire the boathouse."

Palfrey said there are also other issues at play between the school and the town. In particular, the school would like to purchase two, small parcels of land near its campus from the town.

"We have expressed an interest in acquiring those properties and would be open to an arrangement that involves them," he said.

In addition, Palfrey added, Phillips has been in negotiation with the town over voluntary Payments in Lieu of Taxes, known as a PILOT program.

"We've been very open with the town, and we are open to increasing the voluntary payment to the town," he said, "whether that's related to the boathouse property or not."

Selectman Paul Salafia said he had been dealing with Phillips for a year negotiating a PILOT and that talks were ongoing.

Bucuzzo said the town would be willing to sell the two, smaller parcels of land to Phillips.

"There have been discussions about a piece of property Phillips would like to purchase from the town on South Main at Dwight Street," he said. "It's a triangular piece of land that probably could be built on. The town would have to seek Town Meeting approval to dispose of that, in accordance with Chapter 30B."

Salafia said the town is still interested in purchasing the 8-acre boathouse property.

"Everything is on the table," he said. "We have a funding source."

Bucuzzo said one of the problems with buying the boathouse property was that the warrant article was written in such a way that the $800,000 could only be used to buy property for passive recreation. If the property were to be used by an Andover High School rowing team, for example, then that might not be construed as passive recreation.

Salafia, however, said that was not true and that the town could spend the money on the property because boating is considered passive recreation.

The fire chief has also expressed interest in using the property because it would provide the only access to the river for town rescue boats in case of emergency.

Hussey Pond, seen here from the backyard of 7 Lowell St., is nearly empty following a leak in its dam that was first spotted Saturday morning.

Hussey Pond tapped dry after weekend dam break

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmam.com

Daniel Armet awoke Saturday morning to find Hussey Pond behind his 7 Lowell St. home had run dry.

The sight was alarming, said Armet, who is accustomed to seeing the pond filled with water.

The cause was a dam break, which Armet believes to have occurred between 8 p.m. Friday and 6:30 a.m. Saturday.

Armet suspects the dam's breach was due to old age.

"The lower portion of the dam is much older than the upper portion," he said.

Armet said he is thankful his property escaped without damage, especially given the pond serves as a culvert to the Shawsheen River. It is believed that the pond water rushed into the river after the breach, leaving Hussey Pond nearly dry.

According to the Andover Historical Society, the pond, which sits in Shawsheen Village, is believed by many to have been created when Elijah Hussey dammed a brook in the mid- to late-1800s. The dam once powered Hussey's sawmill and provided ice for his other business. Later, villagers replaced the activity there with ice skating, fishing and swimming.

Armet immediately called police. Responding officers initially said that the dam had a hole in it and requested that a detective take pictures of the structure. Workers with the Department of Public Works then arrived and suggested that dam repairs will begin this week.

Residents urged to be prepared in emergencies

With September being National Preparedness Month, local health, safety and emergency management officials are reminding residents who have special needs to be certain that they are prepared in the event of a crisis. "These needs might include communication issues such as a hearing loss or speaking English as a second language, or medical issues such as a need for oxygen or the use of assistive devices such as a wheelchair," Police Chief Patrick Keefe said in a release issued last week.

The release listed a variety of steps to take to be prepared in an emergency situation.

"Lists of medications, their dosage and other instructions, as well as contact information for health care providers should be updated quarterly and kept in a 'go kit' that would include everything you might need for at least two days," the release said.

Preparations should also be made for personal assistant animals. A separate kit should be readied for them that includes food, a water dish and other items, including rabies vaccination information and additional paperwork.

Keefe said residents should think about what items, unique to them, would be needed during an evacuation. "Eye glasses, hearing aids, extra batteries, cords for oxygen generators and any other special equipment must be planned for," he said in the release.

High Plain Elementary teacher vying for national award

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmen.com

Timothy Harkins
High Plain Elementary School teacher Timothy Harkins has won Voya Financial's 2014 Unsung Hero Award and a $2,000 grant to help fund and bring life to his "Dream Planet Project."

Of the 1,000 applicants who applied nationwide, Harkins is one of only 100 winners, and one of two winners in Massachusetts. He will now compete with other winners for one of the top three prizes — an additional $5,000, $10,000 or $25,000.

According to a release from Voya Financial, Dream Planet Project was Harkins' innovative teaching idea. It will help 90 second-grade students learn about space travel and exploration through project-based learning, where students will discover how astronauts and scientists travel to space, explore new planets and map environments as well as the principals of flight.

The project will use resources from the Space Camp and the U.S. Space and Rocket Center, located in Huntsville, Ala. Students will analyze soil from Mars, build water bottle rockets and hot air balloons and facilitate the Mars Rover egg drop.

"Each day, we help individuals prepare for a secure financial future and we are proud to recognize these men and women who prepare students for their future," Bernie Heffernon, senior vice president of tax-exempt markets for retirement solutions at Voya Financial, said in a press release. "We understand that teaching is one of the most important professions in the world and are pleased to help Timothy continue making a life-long, positive impact on the children he teaches."

The award is meant to honor educators' innovative teaching methods, creative educational projects and the ability to positively influence the children they teach.

Straight talk for students

Youth motivational speaker Jeff Yalden will share his powerful message to students and parents at Andover High School next week.

Teen, family life coach to highlight 'no-excuse' style

Jeff Yalden, an award-winning, internationally acclaimed youth motivational speaker who has an ability to connect with young people, is coming to Andover next week.

The Andover Public Schools Health Education Department, in cooperation with its Health Services Department, is coordinating the visit on Tuesday, Sept. 23.

Yalden will speak to all high school students during the school day and then address parents from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Collins Center for the Performing Arts at Andover High, 80 Shawsheen Road. The evening talk is appropriate for parents with children of any age.

Since 1992, Yalden has been sharing his story with teen audiences, teachers, communities and at youth conferences worldwide. He has traveled to all 50 states and 48 countries delivering his keynote address, "About Life."

As a teen and family life coach, he is known for getting to the heart of the matter by helping teens and families in their struggles together.

A former Marine and two-time Marine of the Year recipient, he was Mr. New Hampshire Male America in 1990. In addition to his speaking engagements, he has a weekly radio show where he reaches an audience of more than 2.5 million people. Each week, he explores a new topic regarding families, parenting, teens and high school issues.

His "no excuse" style brings back old school morals and values with an emphasis on discipline, respect, responsibilities and righteousness before happiness. He is said to offer the truth and often shares thoughts and opinions that are difficult to hear, but necessary.

Yalden's appearance kicks off the 2014-2015 Parent to Parent Speaker Series in Andover. For more on Yalden, visit www.jeffyalden.com. For more on the speaker series, including a schedule of upcoming programs this season, visit www.andoverp2p.com.

Lego robots power engineering initiative

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmen.com

In trying to teach with the times, Andover's middle school students will be learning engineering and processor programming by using Lego robots.

Called Legos Mindstorms EV3 Core and Expansion Kits, the seventh- and eighth-graders will be spending their nine-week engineering classes building a pre-designed project. Once built, the students will attempt to program the "brick" processor to make their designs accomplish specific performance objectives.

The program comes to Andover with financial support from the Andover Coalition for Education, which raised roughly $34,000 for the project, according to ACE Director Jennifer Srivastava.

"We work together with (Superintendent of Schools) Marinel McGrath to identify priorities and program ideas," she said. "She looks at different programs and initiatives and puts forth several ideas to the ACE board to have them identify whether or not it's a program they'd like to fund moving forward."

ACE opted to fund this engineering movement in hopes of giving students a unique hands-on learning opportunity.

During the eight-grade engineering cycle at the schools, pairs of students will choose a design or a challenge and use Mindstorms core set and expansion kit, as well as other materials they choose to find a solution.

According to information prepared by Andover's science program adviser Steve Sanborn, Andover middle school students will now only "be limited by their creativity and innovation as they learn both engineering design and basic computer coding skills."

Destination Imagination meeting Oct. 7

A town-wide information meeting on the new season of Destination Imagination will be held Tuesday, Oct. 7, at 7 p.m. at Doherty Middle School on Bartlet Street.

The meeting will serve to explain the the program, in which teams of students use their creativity, imagination and teamwork to solve open-ended challenges and perform at competitive and non-competitive tournaments. Students choose from open-ended challenges in six areas: technical, scientific, performance, improvisation, structure, community service and a special program for kindergarten through grade two.

The goal is to encourage students to create solutions that are imaginative, original and ingenious.

Parents interested in attending are asked to email andoverkids@gmail.com and the town's Destination Imagination coordinator at grade.

■ BUSINESS BRIEF CASE

Casa Blanca expanding to Haverhill

The brothers who own the Mexican restaurant Casa Blanca in downtown Andover are about to open a new location.

Daniel Vargas of Andover and his brother, Jorge Vargas of North Andover, are expanding into downtown Haverhill with the opening of Casa Blanca Family Restaurant in the historic Whittier Hotel building at 2 Essex St.

According to Casa Blanca's website, The brothers opened their first restaurant in 2006 on Osgood Street in North Andover, with the Andover location at 10 Main St. following soon after. A "sister" location in North Billerica opened in 2009, and is run by family friends who are from the same region of Mexico as the Vargas family.

They said they see downtown Haverhill as a good opportunity for expanding their business and serving customers from Haverhill who have been asking them to open a restaurant in the city. The Vargas brothers are renovating the Haverhill site and will be installing new furniture and decorations.

The restaurants serve a mix of authentic Mexican food, along with Tex-Mex and American food.

award. Oates was invited to join other award recipients and select management for a special three-day retreat at The Breakers Palm Beach in Florida in early August.

The President's Council award is an annual honor given by Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage's parent company, NRT, to recognize the top-performing branch managers of 710 offices nationwide who demonstrate exemplary leadership and management skills.

Pat Villani, president of Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage in New England, said she is proud to see Oates "acknowledged for her hard work and dedication."

A stylish anniversary dresscode marks decade with fashion

The women's boutique dresscode in downtown Andover celebrated 10 years of fashion last week doing what it does best — staging a full-scale fashion show.

Owner Amy Finegold and her team marked the milestone for her 2 Elm Square shop with "A Decade of Style" event as a thank-you to her faithful clientele as well as friends, family and the greater community for their loyalty and support.

The night featured wine and light bites, a photo booth, gifts with purchase and a red carpet fashion show showcasing the season's hottest styles that was held next door at the new Laer Realty.

The Sept. 11 event doubled as a benefit for Andover Veterans' Services, with donations to the town department requested in lieu of admission.

Salon Forza in downtown Andover provided the hair and makeup for the 10 models, who included some of Finegold's top customers over the years, friends, colleagues as well as Andover Townsman and The Andovers Magazine Editor Sonya Vartabedian.

Finogold, the wife of state Sen. Barry Finegold and mother of three, was emotional in thanking a capacity crowd for being part of dresscode's journey over the last decade.

Yella Mediterranean Grille and Andover Liquors both helped cater the event.

Aricia Symes-Emer, founder of Shift Your Style in Andover, serves as emcee for the fashion show, which was hosted by dresscode's next-door neighbor, Laer Realty.

Youth Center rises, but costs must be capped

After years of planning, fundraising and countless hurdles, the steel beams rising behind Doherty Middle School that will soon become the home of the long-awaited Cormier Youth Center are a welcome sight.

The Board of Selectmen, joined by other town officials and interested community members, got an up-close tour of the construction site this week and enjoyed an update on the project.

The enormity of the project's scope is finally beginning to be seen. The center will no doubt be a source of pride for the community when it opens its doors next spring. And those behind the effort — who have worked tirelessly to see it come to fruition — will rightfully have much to celebrate.

But news this week that the cost of the project has risen to $6.1 million and is need of another $800,000 to fully fund its completion comes as somewhat of a surprise. The Andover Youth Foundation has $100,000 in the bank to put toward the outstanding balance, which leaves $700,000 still to be raised. The Youth Center Building Committee will be canvassing for donations to help bridge the remaining gap.

True, a lot has changed since the center was first proposed some 20 years ago as a privately funded, $1.5-million facility in West Andover. And the community as well as Town Meeting voters have thrown their support — both in tax dollars and private funds — behind the current public/private project near Doherty.

But at some point the cost has to be capped. In 2001, when plans for the current site were unveiled, the cost was billed at $4 million. Last June, the building committee was touting a $5.4 million price tag. In a little more than a year, the cost has now risen over the $6 million mark — to the $6.1 million that was thrown out this week.

What's more is Andover Youth Services Director Bill Fahey suggested that his department would be looking to expand its staff, saying a 21,000-square-foot building can't be run solely with the department's three existing employees. He's probably right.

But those who are championing the youth center should be mindful of the support they have received from the community in recent years and be judicious with their requests for even more dollars.

At some point, no matter how much Andover taxpayers are committed to supporting the youths of the community, there's going to be a point where they decide to take their ball and go home because they're just not going to want to play with their checkbooks anymore.

Interesting election season unfolding

Last week's state primaries sorted out the fields and have given voters in Massachusetts several good races to ponder before the Nov. 4 general election.

The biggest surprise came in the 6th District, in which Democratic challenger Seth Moulton ousted nine-term incumbent Congressman John Tierney.

Moulton, 35, of Marblehead, a graduate of Phillips Academy in Andover, will now face Republican Richard Tisei of Wakefield in the general election. Tisei nearly beat Tierney in 2012, losing by less than a percentage point in a heavily Democratic district.

Voters in the 6th District, which includes parts of Andover as well as North Andover, Georgetown, Groveland and North Reading, will have a real choice this November. This is a race to watch.

The battle to replace outgoing Sen. Barry Finegold, the Andover Democrat who lost his bid for state treasurer, will also prove quite interesting for Andover.

Veteran Selectman Alex Vispoli on the Republican side faces School Committee member and former state Rep. Barbara L'Italien on the Democratic side. Already, Vispoli has thrown down the gauntlet, challenging L'Italien to four debates in each of the communities represented by the 2nd Essex and Middlesex district: Lawrence, Tewksbury, Dracut and Andover. L'Italien has not yet agreed.

Given both candidates have their pockets of support in Andover, we suspect they will be focusing considerable attention elsewhere in the district in the weeks ahead. While we expect the race to be civil, we know both candidates are in it to win. And we will be watching their campaigns very closely into November.

WEB QUESTION

Once again, the Board of Selectmen is considering whether to move the Town Yard from its current, downtown location. But it could cost up to $30 million. How much should the town spend?

$30 million is fine. Our town workers deserve a state-of-the-art Town Yard.

$20 million seems more in line. It won't raise taxes as much.

$10 million is a fair number. It's better for taxpayers and still good for town workers.

I'd spend $0 on a new town yard. Leave it where it is and maintain existing buildings.

Last week's question

Eighteen percent of the town's registered voters — less than 1 in 5 — cast ballots in Tuesday's state primary election. What led to your decision to vote or not to vote?

I feel it's my civic responsibility to vote in every election, national to local, regardless of the contests on the ballot.

41.7 percent

I turned out at the polls to support a specific candidate(s).

16.7 percent

I didn't know there was an election Tuesday.

16.7 percent

I'm not registered to vote.

16.7 percent

I skipped out on voting because I didn't feel strongly about any one candidate or issue.

8.3 percent

I hadn't followed the campaigns and didn't know who to vote for so didn't feed the ballot box.

PAYING TRIBUTE

The flag in front of the Andover Town Offices on Bartlet Street was at half-staff last Thursday on the 13th anniversary of Sept. 11 in memory of the four residents of Andover who were killed in the attacks.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

Compiled by
Susan McKelliget

Here's a look back at what was happening in town this same week at key points over the last 100 years, exactly as reported in the pages of the Andover Townsman:

100 Years Ago Sept. 18, 1914

Next Friday evening in South Church, there will be a public rally in the interest of the Prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of Massachusetts. The public is cordially invited.

The bad "break" in the store of Smith & Manning "committed sometime on Wednesday night" was not quite so bad as reported.

Accidentally, the bulkhead and cellar door had been left open and a crowd of children assembled to see who would dare enter the store. Leonard Saunders arrived on the scene and shut the doors, after which the police jollied various newspaper reporters who had heard of the "robbery."

75 Years Ago Sept. 14, 1939

Several streets have been refinished by the Board of Public Works in the past few weeks, while others are now in the process. Whittier Street and Maple Avenue have been widened, and the gravel shoulders of Chestnut Street have been given two coats of peastone and tar. Yesterday, Punchard Avenue was resurfaced.

A few weeks ago, The Townsman photographer took a picture of three cars in a rear-end collision at the junction of Union and North Main streets. Last Sunday night, he could have taken another picture at the same place, but his film would have had to be long enough to take in four cars. It was a bad interference of interstate commerce. A Reading car hit a Rhode Island car, which hit a Pennsylvania car, which hit a Dorchester car. Local police are hoping that the Dionne youngsters (reference to the quintuplet sensation) never have a car apiece.

50 Years Ago Sept. 16, 1964

The School Committee, with one dissenting vote, gave approval Tuesday to the general scope of plans for the proposed $4.8 million high school. At the same time, it asked school administrators to comb the plans for areas of possible saving, in effect asking them to make a priority list to have on hand should the town balk at raising the full price of the building offered by the School Building Committee.

Abrupt and unseasonal changes in the weather, not chemical refuse, killed Shawsheen River fish in large numbers last July. This is the conclusion reached by the state Department of Health in a report presented to the town manager. In answer to complaints from Ballardvale residents that Reichhold Chemicals Co. is polluting the river, the department took samplings some weeks ago.

the right thing for the residents of Andover and resign now and make room for replacements who won't have the conflicts of interest that both of these candidates currently have.

Barbara L'Italien publicly demanded last winter that David Birnbach resign from our School Committee for the sin of advocating, on behalf of all of the children of the Merrimack Valley in support of creation of a science/technology/engineering/mathematics-focused charter high school (an advocacy in which there was no conflict of interest whatsoever since his proposal was all about improving the public educational opportunities for the children across the Merrimack Valley, but which just happened to run counter to the interests of the Andover Teachers Union).

Barbara should practice what she preaches by immediately resigning from the Andover School Committee, where, in fact, she has a galacticized conflict of interest, and Alex should resign as a selectman for the same reason. Otherwise, this election will be tainted by the prospect, the likelihood, of subterranean political favors made and promised to Andover town employees and/or their unions to garner their votes, contributions and endorsements.

BOB POKRESS
3 Cherrywood Circle

Finegold thanks hometown for support

Editor, Townsman:
I want to thank everyone in the town for their overwhelming support in last week's election and over the course of the last nine months of our campaign. I am very proud of the effort we put forward together, and running for statewide office was a remarkable experience.

My life started off in public housing, and it wasn't until my parents got public school teaching jobs that we moved up here to Andover, which I continue to call home. It was because of hard work and dedication that opportunity came to my family and me. I serve in public office so that other families will have the same opportunity I did. Our campaign was fueled by this idea, and our message of hard work and humble beginnings resonated with many across the commonwealth.

My desire to help people and make a difference will continue, and I am so appreciative of what this town has given me.

SEN. BARRY R. FINEGOLD
Andover

Senate candidates L'Italien, Vispoli should resign town posts

Editor, Townsman:

Now that the candidates for the state Senate seat to replace Sen. Barry Finegold, D-Andover, have been chosen, both candidates, fellow Andover residents Barbara L'Italien and Alex Vispoli, need to do the right thing and immediately resign their positions as, respectively, a member of the Andover School Committee and Andover Board of Selectmen.

Why? Because they each have major conflicts of interest that they have created by their becoming candidates to become state senator for our Merrimack Valley district while they simultaneously hold the most senior town positions.

Each candidate has a significant number of town employees who currently work for them whose votes and contributions (especially from the unions who represent public employees and who make contributions to, endorse and campaign for political candidates) they are soliciting while holding the positions as School Committee member and selectman. If they were running for some other

Thought-provoking Simpson retrospective opens at Addison

By TERRY DATE
Staff Writer

Be prepared for work — and for play — when you see the “Lorna Simpson” exhibit opening Saturday at the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy in Andover.

Simpson’s works of art — in photographs and text, and in videos — invite pondering and rifling through memory.

Simpson’s art is meaty and doesn’t lend itself to sound bites, said Allison Kemmerer, the gallery’s Mead curator of photography and curator of contemporary art.

A conceptual artist who uses photography, Simpson’s art inspires reflection — on ourselves, our history, our world and the way we interpret the world, Kemmerer said.

All its layers, depth and range make her art important, she added.

“She’s one of the most important artists of our time,” Kemmerer said.

The retrospective, which runs through Jan. 4, presents the New York-born, African-American artist’s works from the 1980s to recent times.

“You can see threads that have been popping up in her works over time,” Kemmerer said.

It includes a video called “Chess,” making its American debut in the Addison show.

Lorna Simpson’s thought-provoking images and videos — like this still, titled “Chess” — will be on display at the Addison Gallery of American Art starting Saturday. The retrospective show runs through Jan. 4.

Speaking of video, visitors should be prepared for a surprise when they climb the stairs to rooms of Simpson’s large displays.

Earlier this year, Europe got its first looks at a Simpson retrospective, including a show at the Baltic Centre for Contemporary Art, in Gateshead, England. The show came away with rave reviews, Kemmerer said. It is being shown in the U.S. for the first time at Addison.

Cathy McLaurin, director of the Elizabeth A. Beland Gallery at the Essex Art Center in Lawrence, has been following Simpson’s work and says the Addison show is a major event coming off the European

Greek Festival a crowd-pleaser

It was a good time to be Greek — or act like you were — this past weekend at Sts. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church’s annual Greek Festival.

The Andover church on Chandler Road served up a healthy sample of authentic Greek food, music and dancing to offer a window into its culture. To top it off, festival-goers enjoyed cooking demonstrations, church tours, children’s activities and an Athenian marketplace.

Proceeds from the weekend will be used to support church activities.

Cultural Council opens grant process

The Andover Cultural Council announces the beginning of its 2015 funding cycle, and is calling for proposals from organizations, artists, schools and residents interested in receiving grants for locally based projects in the arts, humanities and interpretive sciences. Applications are due by Oct. 15.

This year, the council has $5,070 in available funding, which is a slight increase over last year. It is seeking a variety of projects in all disciplines, but places particular emphasis on projects involving collaboration between community groups, new or previously unfunded programs, and proposals that reflect the town's growing diversity.

"It's always exciting to open those envelopes and read the proposals; there's a lot of deserving talent and creativity out there," council chairwoman Leslie Malis said in a press release.

However, council members caution that because they routinely have more applicants than they can fund, the process is competitive. They encourage prospective applicants to contact the council if they have questions concerning their proposal or the application procedure.

"We understand that the process can sometimes appear daunting, especially for first-time applicants, and we want to do all we can to make sure it is as easy as possible," Malis said in the release.

Applicants are also welcome to attend the council meeting on Thursday, Nov. 13, at 7 p.m. in the Town Offices building if they want to further explain their proposal and answer any questions that may arise in the review process.

Last year, the council distributed 13 grants, supporting activities ranging from concerts, historical programs and theater, to residencies and performances in schools and activities at the senior center.

The Andover Cultural Council is part of the network of more than 300 local councils serving the commonwealth. It is an agent of the Massachusetts Cultural Council, which receives its funding from the state Legislature, and in turn allocates funds to each community.

For more information, email the council at ACC01810@gmail.com or visit www.andoverculturalcouncil.com Complete guidelines and application forms are also available online at www.mass-culture.org.

Local mystery writer sharing short stories

A former police beat reporter with the Andover Townsman's sister paper, The Eagle-Tribune, who would become the author of several gritty mystery thrillers (including an Edgar Allen Poe Award nominee) comes to the Andover Bookstore this Thursday night.

Andrew Coburn of Andover will read from his new book, "Spouses & Other Crimes," at 6:30 p.m.

The book (Stark House Press, $15.95 paperback) is a compilation of 11 short stories by Coburn, 82, whose spouse is Casey Coburn. The couple have lived in town for several years.

Coburn carved a writing style which the New York Times once called "chilly elegance," while a London Sunday Times reviewer once said his "...prose is so flexed and edged as to make paranoias fashionable."

Coburn wrote his first crime fiction book in 1974 and went on to write several more books. Life never glides smoothly for Coburn's characters as they typically get murdered or are somehow involved in one. He also covered organized crime for Boston newspapers and once he learned that a contract had been put out against his life, prompting him to carry a gun.

His book, "Goldilocks," was nominated for the prestigious Mystery Writers of America Edgar Allen Poe Award, which has been presented to famed mystery writers James Patterson and Dennis Lehane.

Teen to honor grandfather at Sunday's Alzheimer's walk

IF YOU GO

- What: Northeast Massachusetts Walk to End Alzheimer's
- When: Sunday, Sept. 21, 8:30 a.m.
- Where: Brickstone Square, Andover
- How: For information or to register, call 800-272-3900 or visit www.alzwalkMANH.org.

For 13-year-old Haley Traub, special Saturday mornings with her grandfather used to mean boat rides on Lake Winnepesaukee with him steering his craft, followed by a trip to Kelly's Yum Yum candy shop in Wolfeboro, N.H.

"It was so much fun ... I loved being with him," said the West Middle School eighth-grader.

A diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease has sadly ended those moments. Haley's 84-year-old grandfather, Edwin Traub, eventually moved to the memory care unit at Atria Marland Place on Stevens Street. He and his wife, Iris, live in one of the apartments in the unit.

While Haley still longs for those Saturdays of yesterday, her visits with her grandparents have continued. The boat rides and stops at the candy shop may be no more, but she said she is just happy to see them together as life goes on.

On Sunday, Haley will honor her grandfather by leading Team Edwin in the annual Northeast Massachusetts Walk to End Alzheimer's in Andover. Haley has recruited family members and friends from her gymnastics group to join her in donning purple T-shirts, the color that has come to symbolize Alzheimer's, and walking for the cause. It will be the team's first appearance in the event that raises money for Alzheimer's research.

"I just loved those Saturdays. ... I wanted to get involved and do this," she said.

The walk starts with an opening ceremony and special tribute in Brickstone Square in Andover at 8:30 a.m. Participants will then circle back there for refreshments, children's activities and more festivities. There will also be an opportunity for people to connect with local service providers and learn more about the services offered by the Alzheimer's Association.

Organizers expect a high turnout, given the number of families affected by Alzheimer's. An estimated 5.2 million Americans have Alzheimer's and that number is expected to rise rapidly in the coming years as the baby-boom generation ages, according to the Alzheimer's Association.

By 2050, the number of people age 65 and older with Alzheimer's may nearly triple, to as many as 16 million, barring the development of medical breakthroughs to prevent, slow or stop the disease, the website reports.

Money raised at the Andover walk will help increase awareness of Alzheimer's and fund research, care and support services for people who are living with the disease

Offering hope is a walk in The Park

Lazarus House Ministries is recruiting teams of walkers to lend a hand to those living in poverty next month through its 15th annual Walk for Hope.

The 3-mile fundraising walk on Sunday, Oct. 5, will start and finish at The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets and will include family activities and a free barbecue. Speechless, a jazz ensemble from Boston, will perform.

The Hike for Hope was initiated in 1999 and raises awareness and funds in support of Lazarus House's work. The organization offers emergency shelter, food and clothing to people in crisis and then provides transitional housing, advocacy, health services, education and work preparation so they can permanently break the cycle of poverty.

Organizers are hoping to raise $200,000 this year. Teams, individuals, church groups, schools and local businesses are encouraged to participate.

The event begins with registration from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., with announcements, guest speakers and the official welcome starting at 12:30 p.m. Walkers will step off at 1 p.m. and the barbecue goes from 2 to 3 p.m. The general registration fee is $15, free for children 3 and under.

To register or for more information, visit www.hikeforhope.org. To learn more about fundraising ideas or sponsorship opportunities, call 978-269-5222 or email at events@lazarushouse.org.

13 locals lacing up for Jimmy Fund Walk

Thirteen Andover residents will lace up Sunday and walk up to 26.2 miles along the historic Boston Marathon route in the annual Jimmy Fund Walk.

The event is expected to draw 8,500 walkers with the goal of raising more than $7.5 million for the Jimmy Fund to support adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

The local participants include Judy Cai, Kimberly Finn, Mary Finn, Cathy Foley, James Frey, Shalia Gwiazda, Elliott Jacobowitz, Nancy Kendrick, Kevin Murphy, Reilly O'Brien, Kimberly Sheehy, Joan Sopp and Elizabeth Waters.

Walkers can choose from four routes — the full 26.2 miles from Hopkinton, 13.1-mile, half-marathon from Wellesley, a 5-mile course from Boston College and a 3-mile walk from Dana-Farber that will include many patients and their families. Entertainment and refreshments will await all at the finish line in Copley Square.

The event is the most profitable single-day walk in the nation.

Organizers are hoping this year to exceed the $100-million mark for total funds raised in the 26-year history.

Participants must raise at least $300, or $100 for those 12 and under. "Virtual walkers" are also invited to raise money online.

To register, support a walker or volunteer, visit www.JimmyFund-Walk.org or call 866-531-9255.

Pedaling a solemn message White shirt ride shines attention on bicycle safety

A couple dozen bicyclists donned white shirts and gathered earlier this month for a memorial pedal for two local men who died from injuries suffered while on the road doing what they loved.

The first Labor Day silent memorial and safety bicycle ride from Andover to the North Andover Common and back was held Monday, Sept. 1.

It honored avid cyclists Roger Smith and Martin "Marty" Sinacore, both of whom were involved in bicycle accidents in 2012 that ultimately proved fatal. Smith, 66, died in October 2012 from head injuries suffered after being thrown from his bike during a Labor Day ride from Andover to Ipswich. Sinacore, 59, who enjoyed bicycling around the world while traveling for work, was killed that November in Nantucket, his favorite destination for bike trips.

Ben Kellman, who organized the Labor Day bike ride, said the white T-shirts were intended to serve two purposes — to make bicyclists more visible while Kellman hoped the ride served to show motorists how exposed and fragile a bicyclist is and also to remind all cyclists to always wear a helmet, be visible and predictable. Helmets were mandatory for the memorial ride, which began and ended in The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets.

The games will officially kick off at 9:45 a.m. with opening ceremonies and a parade, with the events starting at 10 a.m. Lunch will take place from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m., followed by the awards ceremony at 2 p.m. The event will go off rain or shine.

Muddy for the cause
Melmark Mudders to conquer The Vermont BEAST

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmen.com

On Saturday, a group of employees and parents of students at the Andover-based Melmark New England will willfully run 13 miles filled with mud and obstacles on Killington Mountain in Vermont for a good cause.

After participating in the Spartan Sprint two years ago, a select group from Melmark, who named themselves the Melmark Mudders, were left intrigued and longing for more.

They are now set to tackle The Vermont BEAST — a longer and more difficult cousin of the Spartan Sprint, which spanned just over 3 miles of flat terrain in Amesbury.

"We all kind of got into it and got excited about it," said Bill Ahearn of Andover, who is director of business operations at Melmark New England.

Saturday's event will be significantly different — four times the length of the Spartan Sprint and involve running both uphill and downhill on a mountain. Plus, it will be broadcast nationally on NBC on Nov. 16 at 3 p.m.

"One of our students' parents had done the Beast a couple of times before, and he sort of got us psyched about it, so we got a group together," Ahearn said. "He has a cabin in Killington, so we'll go up there the night before and spend the night."

Melmark is a nonprofit, community-based educational organization dedicated to serving children and adolescents with autism spectrum disorders, acquired brain injury, neuro-developmental disorders and severe challenging behaviors, according to the company.

Joining Ahearn in pursuing The BEAST will be Melmark parent Jerry Hegarty and family members Rick Cronin, Jeanne Hegarty, Don Kerr, Colin Kerr, Harrison Fiscus, Alan Rosh, Tom Hennings and Tom Willwerth, as well as Melmark ABA counselor Shawn Dumas.

All of the funds raised by the team will go directly to Melmark New England to support its Promises to Keep campaign for new projects at the organization's office. Goals of the campaign include building a commercial kitchen and full-service cafeteria, which will serve as a valuable vocational opportunity for young adult students. Also, a professional and parent training center will provide a state-of-the-art facility for their speakers series, staff and parent training programs, school events and more, according to a release.

By early this week, the group had raised almost half of its $5,000 goal.

Warriors dealt heart-breaking, last-second loss

BY DAVID WILLIS
dwillis@andovertownsmen.com

It was very nearly a comeback for the ages.

With 48 seconds left in the game, Andover quarterback E.J. Perry IV connected with receiver Zach Walker on a 20-yard touchdown pass in the right corner of the end zone to bring the Golden Warriors to within one point.

But the following extra point sailed wide and the on-sides kick was recovered by North Andover as the Scarlet Knights defeated Andover for the first time since 2005, 20-19.

"We need to learn how to finish," said Andover head coach E.J. Perry. "Our kids showed a lot of resilience to make the comeback, but we put ourselves in the position to need a rally. We need to take care of the ball better and play with more poise. But we will work it out."

Andover appeared ready to go ahead in the second quarter, twice driving inside the North Andover 30-yard line. But on both occasions the Golden Warriors were turned away on fourth down, and the Knights broke through with a touchdown to go ahead 6-0 at halftime.

"We were moving the ball well early," said Perry the coach. "But we didn't score when we had those chances Andover's Brandon Marti makes a big catch in the third quarter of the Golden Warriors' matchup with North Andover. Marti caught one touchdown and returned an interception for another score, but the Warriors fell to their neighboring rival.

Andover's Victory Guery follows through on a kick during a game this season. A three-year starting center/back for the Golden Warriors, Guery has also played soccer in his native France.

French native Guery brings passion for soccer to Golden Warriors

BY DAVID WILLIS
dwillis@andovertownsmen.com

Don't tell Victor Guery that soccer isn't a contact sport.

"People say to me that soccer isn't physical," he said. "But once they look at me they think otherwise. I am the last guy before the goal. I am the guy that chases players down and tackles them hard. I am the one that dives head first into the box and gets hit in the head."

"Against North Andover last year their goalie punted the ball and it hit me right in the face. I had a black eye for a while, and that showed people how tough soccer can be."

Now in his third season as a key member of the Andover High varsity team, Guery has not only taken on the best of the Merrimack Valley Conference has to offer, but has also tested his skills against players from his native country of France.

"Playing soccer in France was amazing," he said. "Everyone there is very competitive, and the rules of the sport allow it to be a little bit more aggressive. It was great."

But at the moment, Guery's focus is on the success of the Golden Warriors, who enter the week 2-1.

"Victor is a very skilled, strong player with a terrific work ethic," said Andover coach Jim Saalfrank. "He sees the field beautifully and he doesn't know the meaning of the word 'quit.' He has so much poise and composure, having him as the last line of defense is very appealing."

Born in Rennes, a city in northwestern France where soccer is king, Guery moved to America and Andover at 15-months-old with his parents, Alain and Valerie, and older brother Norbert for his father's job.

Andover's Victor Guery is never more comfortable than when he is on the soccer field. A three-year varsity player, the native of France has a passionate love of the game.

It was his brother that truly sparked Victor's love of soccer. Norbert was a four-year varsity player for Andover High (2003-06), as a senior leading the Golden Warriors with 10 goals. He then played at Bryant University.

"I was definitely the team mascot," Victor said with a laugh. "I always watched him in high school and with his club team. He was probably more technically gifted than I am, but he was a striker so his job was to score goals. It seemed like he scored a goal every game. He was great. And I was playing by the time I was six."

After playing JV as a freshman, Victor Guery broke onto the Andover high varsity team as a sophomore, but injuries limited his playing time that season.

That following spring, he took on a whole new challenge on the pitch and in his life, when he spent a semester abroad in France.

"I spent six months in France and it was an amazing experience," he said. "Being from a French family I was fascinated. I am not a shy person and I am fluent in French, but being around another culture was definitely very different. The people of France have a very different attitude towards others. Growing up in Andover, everyone is very kind. In France it seems like people are more on the edge and worried about others."

Guery bonded with his foreign classmates on the soccer field, playing for a town team. "People love soccer so much there so that made it exciting," he said. "Soccer is much more technical in France. Here it is focused a lot on physical ability. There it is so much about technique. And the players are very, very aggressive. It was fun."

was back in action for the Andover soccer team, again anchoring the defense as a center/back, a position he is once again playing this season as a senior captain.

"In our system, I am really the deep guy," he said. "I need to see the field and make sure I don't make mistakes. I am the last line of defense. I am the one that tries to get the ball from the opponent and make something happen. Sometimes I will pass it up, and other times I will take it myself and try to attack."

His coach has the utmost confidence in Guery as both a player and a captain.

"His brother may have been more skilled, but Victor is tougher," said Saalfrank. "He may play defense, but he could do anything on the field. He has an amazing dedication to the game."

Guery's dedication to the game continues to his favorite team, the Paris Football Team.

"I am an all-out fan," said Guery, who travels back to France every summer and hopes to attend McGill University in Québec. "My brother and I both watch as many games as possible streaming on-line. The posters are all over my room, I have the team scarf, the logo keychain and everything."

He also believes that the Golden Warriors can make a mark in the playoffs this season.

"As a team we want to be a high seed in the tournament and get a home game," he said. "I feel like we have the talent and unity to win the MVCs. We are going to put in the work to do it."

Little League Majors tryouts move to fall

Andover Little League is breaking with tradition and moving the tryouts for its Majors Division from next spring to this fall.

The American League, which consists of players who live in the West Elementary and High Plain elementary schools district, will try out on Saturday, Oct. 25, while the National League, which consists of those living in the Sanborn, South and Bancroft schools district, will hold tryouts on Sunday, Oct. 26.

Both tryouts will take place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. outdoors at Deyermund Blanchard fields at 15 Blanchard St. Players will be assigned a tryout time once they register.

The change will allow the AAA teams to better prepare for their season without having to wait for the Majors teams to be finalized.

Players will also be able to demonstrate their skills on an actual baseball diamond outdoors rather than trying out indoors, which has been the case in the past. And the league saves the cost of having to rent an indoor facility. This past spring, the tryouts were held in the Phillips Academy field house.

All players who have birthdays between May 1, 2002 and April 30, 2005 are eligible for the 2015 Majors Division. Evaluations are mandatory for all players and registration is required. Any player not selected for Majors will be automatically placed in the AAA division. Additional evaluations will not be conducted next spring.

To register for the Majors tryouts, visit www.andover-littleleague.com.

Anyone with questions about their district assignment should contact Robert Adamsky, Andover Little League registrar, at allregistrar@gmail.com or Patrick Grecco, vice president of Andover Little League, at pdgrecco@comcast.net. The league is also in the process of recruiting and identifying managers for the spring 2015 season. Those interested should also contact Adamsky or Grecco.

The long-time local golf pro shot a 1-under par 71 to win the 2014 NEPGA Head Professional Championship at Kirkbrae Country Club in Lincoln, R.I., recently.

Menery beat four other golfers who were a stroke behind at even par. He won $1,600 for the victory.

The Warriors were able to bounce back after the break thanks to budding star Brandon Marti.

On their first drive after the half, Perry connected with Marti for a 5-yard touchdown pass. Then, one play into the following drive, Marti intercepted a pass and took it 55 yards for a touchdown, and the Warriors led 14-6.

"I thought Marti played a terrific game on both sides of the ball," said Perry of the junior. "He turned in a few really big plays that helped us come back."

But just as it seemed that Andover would once again find a way to deal North Andover another devastating loss, its lead proved to be short-lived, as the Knights opened the fourth quarter with two touchdowns for a 20-13 advantage.

But that was when the Warriors staged their comeback.

Starting at the Knights' 33, Perry hit Alex Marshall on a 17-yard reception, then executed a fourth down on a Perry connection with Dan Gemmell.

Perry then made it a one-point game with a touchdown pass to Walker. But the following extra point was no good, and North Andover clinched the victory by Brian Duffy led the Golden Warrior defense with 14 tackles, while Max Grant made 12 stops and Marti had eight tackles.

"We have a lot to improve on that we will work on this week," said Perry. "We have to keep getting better. But we will improve this week in practice and we will be ready for Methuen."
