Andover threatens to cut off North Reading's water in rate dispute

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsman.com

A long-simmering dispute between Andover and North Reading about water rates boiled over last week, with some members of the Board of Selectmen threatening to shut off North Reading's water supply for non-payment. Last week, Selectmen Chairman Dan Kowalski declared that North Reading owes the town $85,000 in unpaid water fees, prompting his colleague, Brian Major, to ask: "What's the impact of shutting off their water? We should just shut off their water." Selectman Paul Salafia asked, "What legal recourse do we have to collect the bill?"

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said the water supply contract, under which Andover sells about 300 million gallons of water a year to North Reading, has a clause that calls for a water shutoff in case of non-payment. However, the contract expired two years ago. A frustrated Selectman Alex Vispoli noted, "This is getting absurd." He and the other selectmen suggested that Stapczynski meet as soon as possible with North Reading Town Administrator Michael Gilleberto to come up with a solution to the conundrum. "I'd recommend you two get together," Vispoli said. "This is a problem that needs to be solved. Hammer it out and bring it back to us." Stapczynski said he would try to set up the meeting but noted that the problem really needs a political solution. "Most people, we would just put a lien on their house," he said, referring to the process of getting homeowners to pay their delinquent water bills. He said Town Counsel Tom Urbelis has been involved and in fact had an agreement between the two towns nailed down, but it was overturned by the North Reading Board of Selectmen. "We had everything nailed down for a new contract but the rates," he said. "So it's really a political decision on the rates." The water dispute goes back at least two years. See, WATER, Page 2

TRAIL BACK ON TRACK

Volunteers clear brush to reopen old 'cart path'

Many years ago, farming families walked to church over a historic cart path from Argilla Road to what is now Cutler Road and the entrance to West Parish cemetery.

In 1998, the portion between Oriole Drive and Cutler Road was marked with the Community Paths logo under the leadership of Margaret Pustell and her husband Bob, then chairman of the Andover Conservation Commission.

With the Pustells' passing, the path became overgrown and obstructed by brush and fallen trees, although portions have continued to be used by neighbors. Now, there is the new AVIS Sakowich Reservation nearby, offering a spectacular connection to Baker's Meadow. Combined with the Old Cart Path, there are several miles of walking loops plus connections to longer distances like the Bay Circuit Trail.

In cooperation with the Andover Trails Committee and AVIS, local volunteers met on Sunday to reopen the Old Cart Path from Oriole Drive to Cutler Road.

Starting at the Oriole Drive entrance, where the path includes two preserved Conservation Commission wetland properties, the group removed trash, trimmed brush and replaced path markers.

Closer to Cutler Road, the group removed several large fallen trees and dense undergrowth where the path was nearly impassible. They also repaired and improved a stream crossing with a rustic boardwalk.

New high school schedule vote set for next week

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsman.com

School Committee members are expected to vote next week on a proposed new high school schedule, though some continue to question its necessity.

The "7-Plus-H" schedule would provide course continuity, allow students more time to absorb material and include a personalized feel to their school day, according to a presentation made at the Sept. 19 School Committee meeting. It would require students to enroll in seven credits in their academic field per year, a half of a point less than the current 7.5 credit mandate. Also, the classes would last the entire school year, rather than one semester as under the current schedule.

The schedule proposal was created by the Andover High School Scheduling Committee, a group of parents, teachers and administrators who met with the assistance of a facilitator over the past two years. A follow-up meeting was held four days after the presentation on Sept. 22 to hear public discussion and field

School Committee votes 4-1 in favor of new contract

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsman.com

The School Committee voted 4-1 to adopt a three-year extension of the current Andover Administrator's Association contract that will eliminate performance-based bonuses for assistant principals and program coordinators.

According to School Board Vice Chairwoman Paula Colby-Clements, who represented the School Committee during the collective bargaining discussions, the contract will forgo individual incentives or bonuses and will spread professional development funds across the association, rather than to just a few individuals. It will also help to ensure that compensation hours worked reflect the expanded roles of the administrators expected by the board.

The contract includes assistant principals as well as program coordinators, such as the fine arts program coordinator and the Coordinator for literacy and digital learning.

Colby-Clements said that the cost of living adjustment for the involved group will be 1.5 percent this fiscal year, and 2 percent in 2015 and 2016.

College neighbors vow to continue to fight against dorms

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsman.com

They're not done yet. The neighbors of Merrimack College are vowing to continue their fight, to the courts if need be, to keep the college from building four new dorms on a vacant lot across from their homes.

Last week, the Andover Planning Board voted to recommend approval of the project, with 17 conditions. Now, Andover Building Inspector Chris Clemente must decide if the conditions are suitable and can be enforced.

Next, the neighbors are hoping for some relief from the Conservation Commission, which spent several hours at the college last week for a site visit of the proposed dorm locations. The project still needs the approval of the North Andover Planning Board, which was expected this week.

According to plans submitted by the college, four dorms would be built on what is now known as Austin Field, a green sward surrounded by trees off Rockbridge Road. Two of the dorms would be in Andover and two would be in North Andover. In addition, the Kowalski, at last week's selectmen's meeting, read an email he sent to Gilleberto on Sept. 15 in which he outlined Andover's view of the issue.

The water contract expired in March 2011, he said, and negotiations between the two towns languished. In December 2013, Stapczynski may have found out why North Reading was delaying resolution of the contract: The town was considering hooking up to the MWRA, which would mean it would no longer need Andover's water.

Andover currently sells as much as 300 million gallons of water a year to North Reading, bringing in about $1.5 million in revenue, or about 20 percent of all water revenues to the town. Loss of the North Reading revenue, Kowalski said, would mean an increase of 20 percent to Andover ratepayers.

Over the course of 2013 and through much of this year, Stapczynski and selectmen met several times with North Reading officials in an effort to find common ground and sign a new water rate agreement.

In February, Andover selectmen came up with a rate structure and in March, North Reading agreed to it. Then talks broke down as North Reading had turnover with the former Town Administrator, Greg Balukonis, leaving the post in June, to be replaced by Gilleberto.

During that time, Andover set a new water rate for North Reading, in an effort to get the town back to the bargaining table. The rate was set at $3.41 per hundred cubic feet of water used, or about 750 gallons. The typical bathtub holds about 40 to 50 gallons of water.

The increase would have caused North Reading to pay an additional $120,000 in water use fees. But the town has decided not to pay it, instead, paying Andover at the old water rate of $3 per hundred-cubic-feet of water. That has left a shortfall in the account of about $85,000 to date, Kowalski said.

Making matters even worse, say town officials, is that North Reading is now paying less for its water than Andover residents, who are paying $3.10 per hundred-cubic feet of water.

While this was taking place, the two towns restarted negotiations, with the dispute currently focused on the length of the agreement.

Kowalski said he thinks North Reading wants a short-term contract and will hook up to the MWRA by 2019. Andover, meanwhile, wants a 10-year contract.

North Reading officials could not be reached for comment last week.

DORMS

school has proposed building a community center in the midst of the dorms.

Neighbors living along the far side of Rockridge Road, however, have cried foul since the project was first proposed, declaring that the view out their living room windows would go from a tree-lined campus green to a series of brick-and-block buildings teeming with pot-smoking, beer-swilling students using foul language.

At numerous meetings, neighbors have talked about loud parties that can be heard at dorms on other parts of campus.

Melissa Marquis of 3 Woodcliff Road told selectmen last week that students were "smoking pot in our neighborhood."

She told them that 18 cars were parked in the neighborhood over the weekend but that police couldn't do anything "because there was no signage."

She went on to say the college is unresponsive to neighbors' complaints or concerns from the town.

The Board of Selectmen on Aug. 8 sent a letter to college president Christopher Hopey on Aug. 8 "to convey our formal opposition to the Merrimack College Dormitory Project as it is currently proposed."

The letter went on to ask that the college "consider relocating the dormitories to another location on the vast Merrimack property."

They wrote that the project will "irreparably harm and forever change the character of this quiet neighborhood of single-family homes."

To date, the college has not responded, prompting selectmen to wonder what the problem was.

"I'm surprised we haven't seen a response," said Selectman Alex Vispoli.

Selectman Paul Salafia noted that he "got a call" the day after the college received the letter.

"I asked for a meeting but got not response," he said.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said he has heard "nothing formal" from the school.

Jim Chiavelli, spokesman for the school, said last week that the school will respond at some point.

"We will respond to selectmen in due course with what we believe will be sufficient information," he said.

At last week's Planning Board meeting, only a few residents showed up because they knew the board would vote in favor of the project.

The reason, said Jennifer Ross of Rockridge Road, is the Dover Amendment, which gives the Planning Board and other boards and commissions in town less authority over educational projects. The law was intended to allow such institutions to expand for the betterment of students without having to overcome the usual legal hurdles for ordinary housing or commercial projects.

"We know that living next to a college is going to have negative points," Ross said. "We always felt that the good would outweigh the bad. We never thought they'd put that many students in a residential neighborhood and we figured that even if they tried, the town would never approve it. But we didn't know about the Dover Amendment."

Nonetheless, neighbors haven't given up, she said.

"We are going through the Conservation Commission process, the selectmen are looking into the IMA (inter-municipal water and sewer agreement), and we are meeting with our lawyers," she said.

Last week, the Board of Selectmen updated residents on the status of the so-called inter-municipal agreement, a document that is needed whenever a community provides water or sewer service to buildings or facilities in another community.

The approval, in the case of Andover, must be given by the Board of Selectmen, acting in their capacity as water and sewer commissioners.

Local officials say they have been unable to locate such an agreement with North Andover, although the college pays water and sewer fees to the town as a regular customer would.

At a previous meeting, town officials were informed that an IMA was not needed because the state Legislature in 1948 passed a special act saying that Andover could simply provide water and sewer service to any buildings at Merrimack College, whether they were in Andover or North Andover.

However, nobody has been able to find that agreement, either.

Selectmen said last week they believed an IMA was needed.

"We should specifically be talking about an IMA for Merrimack College," said Selectman Mary O'Donoghue.

It remains unclear whether the board would delay or derail the project by denying an IMA or a permit to hook up to the town's water or sewer systems. Currently, approval for hooking up to the sewer system lies with Board of Health agent Tom Carbone, according to Stapczynski.

Meanwhile, town residents are working with the Conservation Commission in an effort to convince members that additional buildings in the area would create more flooding in an already wet neighborhood.

Kristin Spinella of 23 Rockridge Road said she has "a lot of water issues now" and was concerned they would only get worse once the dorms were built.

"Who is responsible for cleaning up the water issues now, before the dorms are built?" she asked.

Melissa Marquis of 3 Woodcliff Road said her property floods "all the time. That whole area seems to be underwater."

Chris Cronin, director of Plant and Facilities, said the neighborhood has a high water table.

"I know of several drainage issues in the past," he said. "It's a very wet area. There are concerns with groundwater there."

CONTRACT

Dr. Marinel McGrath explained that principals are not involved in the contract because state law does not allow collective bargaining for them.

This means that while principals are given bonuses when deemed appropriate by the superintendent, vice principals and program coordinators are on a predetermined, three-year system.

For this reason, School Committeeman David Birnbach disagreed with the contract and was alone in voting against it.

"Basically, if the school board is committed to this three-year contract, k-12 administrators — coordinators and assistant principals — all know exactly what their raises are going to be for the next three years, whether they do an average or below-average job," he said. "We're committing to a three-year contract that shows no difference in whether someone steps up or not."

Colby-Clements said she understood Birnbach's view but disagreed.

"You're saying you want to use compensation to get them to perform at a high level and to perform better and reward them for that," she said. "OK. That's great;

that's the goal. But people can be incentivized in a number of ways. Compensation is just one way."

Birnbach responded by saying that principals, vice principals and program coordinators, as part of the leadership management team, serve equally important roles and should be on one common, consistent compensation plan.

"Now, (the administrator) is going to get the same amount of money if he's a 'C' player, a 'B' player, or an 'A+' player," he said.

Town talks with Kinder-Morgan over pipeline project

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

Town officials are continuing to monitor the progress of the proposed Kinder-Morgan pipeline and even held a closed-door meeting with company officials to express their concerns about the path of the project.

Meanwhile, the company has made a "pre-filing" of the project with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which has final say over the path of the pipeline. The pre-filing may lead to more community meetings, town officials said last week.

The town has also signed on as an intervener in the project through the Northeast Municipal Gas Pipeline Coalition, made up of 10 communities in Massachusetts and one in New Hampshire that are affected by the pipeline project.

As an intervener, the town will be copied on all major filings and other correspondence regarding the pipeline.

During a recent Board of Selectmen meeting, Chairman Dan Kowalski and Plant and Facilities Director Chris Cronin briefed the rest of the selectmen and the public about the meeting they had with Kinder-Morgan officials.

"Town officials, Chris Cronin in particular, did a good job of sharing our primary concerns about the impact on watershed land and its proximity to schools," Kowalski said.

He noted that Kinder-Morgan officials said it was not uncommon to run a pipeline less than 1,000 feet from a school but that when they do, they use a smaller pipe to reduce the risk of rupture. Originally slated to be a 30- or 36-inch line, the pipe is now slated to be a 20-inch line that runs through Andover, Kowalski said.

They also told town officials that they do everything they can to keep the pipeline away from high-density residential areas, which is why pipelines often run through woodlands and wetlands.

Nonetheless, town officials offered a number of alternative proposals for the path of the pipeline so that it wouldn't pass through sensitive ecological sites or residential areas. The problem, as has been noted in the past, is that the gas company needs a 50- to 100-foot right-of-way for the pipeline. That means that land within that right-of-way can't be used or developed or encroached upon by landowners.

As a result, town officials suggested using the Interstate 93 corridor for the pipeline. The problem with that, Kowalski reported, is that the route has limited access to feeder lines and the highway often passes through densely populated areas.

Cronin said another suggestion was to put the pipeline along powerline corridors. Company officials, however, said they didn't like that option because it would make it difficult to cross the Merrimack River, which has steep banks in certain locations.

That is one of many of the difficulties with the $4 billion project, they told town officials.

Selectman Paul Salafia said he didn't buy the company's logic and was skeptical of its claims.

"Conservation land is less onerous because it's not near people," he said. "But to murder or rape that land doesn't make sense either."

Company officials agreed to another meeting in a week or two to update the town on the progress and regulatory status of the project.

Cronin said that while he was "encouraged they held the meeting, they were very non-committal about what they could do. If they want to come through Andover, they are going to come through Andover."

Kowalski said he was "encouraged and hopeful that Kinder-Morgan will come back with a different path."

But Cronin noted that he wouldn't be surprised if Kinder-Morgan pitted Andover against other communities by altering the path of the pipeline and then pointing to Andover as the reason.

"It's not above them to use us to fight their fight," he said. "They may go along with some of our suggestions and then point to us as the reason."

Selectmen reject policy change governing executive session minutes

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

The Andover Board of Selectmen has decided week not to strengthen its policy on executive session minutes as Town Clerk Larry Murphy suggested state law was strong enough to protect the public's right to view public documents such as meeting minutes.

At their regular meeting last Monday night, the Board of Selectmen debated whether to strengthen its minutes policy to provide for a more regular review and release of executive session minutes.

Selectmen Chairman Dan Kowalski had proposed the measure as a way to prevent past practices, when executive session minutes would languish in secrecy for years until someone, most likely a newspaper reporter or editor, would come along and seek their release.

Last year that's exactly what happened as the Andover Townsman discovered that years of past executive session minutes had never been released because the Board of Selectmen didn't have a regular practice of reviewing and releasing the minutes.

According to state law, minutes can be released to the public once the reason for the executive session has expired.

For example, after the town settled its case with Bancroft Road resident James Berberian, the Board of Selectmen voted to release the minutes upon the request of the Andover Townsman.

But last Monday night, the town clerk told selectmen that there was no reason to institute a new policy on regular releases of executive session meeting minutes because state law was sufficient.

"You don't need to impose additional restrictions," Murphy said. "The Open Meeting Law says minutes should be released at regular intervals. I wouldn't put a definitive time on that. Try to be reasonable about releasing the minutes."

Selectman Paul Salafia agreed.

"I think it's fine the way it is," he said. "We are accountable for it."

He added that the board could do a "quarterly review" or look at releasing the minutes twice a year.

Salafia and Murphy are part of a subcommittee looking at all of the policies of selectmen. Kowalski asked that they look at that policy as well as they review the policy handbook. "Please do," he said.

Kowalski also sought to have executive session minutes posted on the town website, a measure selectmen didn't address. Kowalski has noted in the past that many other communities, some of which are much smaller than Andover, post their executive session minutes on their websites once they have been approved for release.

Selectmen seek website improvements

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski was told last week to stop making excuses and to start fixing the town's website so it is easier to use and has more information.

During a discussion of the town manager's goals and objectives for the remainder of 2014, the board looked at five primary categories, one of which was a "unified communication infrastructure."

Under the goals and objectives in that category, Stapeczynski, working with town staff, was tasked with replacing the old phone system with a new, Voice over Internet Protocol phone system, or VoIP. He was also asked to "transition to a new, decentralized town website content management system."

Both of those projects are ongoing, according to Stapeczynski, and should be accomplished by the end of the year.

Selectman Alex Vispoli asked why it had taken two years to update the town's website so that the meeting minutes of more boards and commissions could be posted.

Currently, Stapeczynski said, just seven out of the dozens of boards and commissions that work in Andover post their minutes on the town website, including the Board of Selectmen, School Committee, Planning Board, Zoning Board, Board of Health, Finance Committee and Conservation Commission.

He said town staff is working on putting another 10 committees' minutes on the website but that it's taken a long time to get it done.

"All the agendas are posted, but the minutes are a challenge," he said. "The way our website was established 10 or 15 years ago, posting information takes a little bit of work."

Vispoli said he was frustrated.

"It's been over a year-and-a-half since we first talked about getting a self-serve website," he said. "We were told it would take a couple of years when there are smaller towns that can do it in a matter of days or weeks. This has been dragging on for a long time. I can't imagine why we're not there yet."

Stapeczynski said the town has had a lot of trouble with the phone system and getting the VoIP system in place.

"The emphasis has been put on that so we can have a good phone system," he said.

Vispoli replied: "Those are excuses. Get back to the website. ... I'm just frustrated."

Kowalski agreed, noting that while the agendas for the boards and commissions are posted in advance of the meetings, they disappear once the meeting has been held.

"The agendas go away," he said.

"Not completely," said Town Clerk Larry Murphy, noting that a paper version of the agendas is kept "for a year."

According to Stapeczynski's goals and objectives, a new website will be up and running by Dec. 31, at which point a presentation will be made to the Board of Selectmen.

Meanwhile, all buildings in town, including schools, are scheduled to have a new phone system within the same time frame.

Joyce B. Andrews, 82

March 31, 1932 — September 25, 2014

ANDOVER, NORTH ANDOVER — Joyce Bisbee Andrews died peacefully on September 25, 2014 at the age of 82.

Joyce was born to Elliot and Dorothy (Winsor) Bisbee on March 31, 1932. She grew up in Vermont and Concord, Mass. and was a resident of Andover and North Andover over the past 60 years. A graduate of Radcliffe College, she was a teacher and then a caring and present mother of four children. In her 40s, she earned a Master's degree in Psychology from Tufts University. She then worked in the North Andover school system helping to diagnose and place children with special needs. After retiring from the school system, she volunteered as a hospice care provider.

Joyce's interests were broad, and she cared deeply for her family, her friends, and her community. She served on numerous charitable boards of directors, was President of the Andover League of Women Voters, was a member of the Vestry of Christ Church, and was one of the first female trustees of Middlesex School. She enjoyed traveling, puzzling, and playing sports with family and friends. When no longer able to move about the tennis court, she became an avid ping-pong player with her friends at Edgewood Retirement Community. Always a champion for women's issues, she was grateful that her granddaughters have opportunities that were not available to her when she was a child. She will be remembered especially for her moral presence, her generous spirit and compassion, her keen intelligence, and her enthusiastic enjoyment of life. She made everyone feel welcome and valued.

Joyce married Jerry Andrews, and they enjoyed 56 fulfilled years together, including the time she lovingly and courageously cared for him through his struggles with Alzheimer's. She was predeceased by her brother, Frederick (Rick) and her sister, Alice, and is survived by her four children, Chris and his wife, Debbie of Andover, Steve and his wife, Lisa of Andover, Ned and his wife, Darlene Young of Glover, Vt., and Lisa Hooper and her husband, Errol of Greentop, Mo. She is also survived by three brothers, Ethan, John and Tom; four grandchildren, Meg, Chris, Sarah, and Jessica; three step-grandchildren; four great-grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews.

ARRANGEMENTS: In lieu of flowers, remembrances may be made to Merrimack Valley Hospice, 360 North Ave., Haverhill, MA 01830. A memorial service will be planned for a date to be determined. Arrangements entrusted to the Conte Funeral Home, 17 Third St., North Andover. To sign the family guest book, please visit www.contefuneralhomes.com.

Caroline Stevens, 95

AMESBURY — Caroline Stevens, 95, slipped away peacefully September 13, at the glorious age of 95 after a short illness.

She joins her husband Horace N. Stevens Jr. and her parents, Samuel F. Rockwell and Marion P. Rockwell as well as her six siblings, William, Tom, Forbes, George, Elizabeth and Mary in Eternity.

Born in North Andover, she was an excellent competitive tennis and squash player. She graduated from Vassar College and married soon after. World War II saw her being the first volunteer in North Andover to get the 1000 hour pin while making bandages, teaching 1st aid and manning the airplane warning tower. It was during this time, she helped establish the Aid Society at Lawrence General Hospital. While raising her six children, she and two friends started the Hay Scales Exchange, a prized handmade craft store, that flourished for decades. Not content with that, Caroline started and maintained a Registered Welsh Pony Stud Farm which was the second largest in New England. This led to a love of horse carriages which she bought and sold for 25 years. She was also the driving force in running the New England Carriage Driving Association Shows at the Edgewood Farm.

Real Estate investing and managing became a passion in her life. She went to Harvard extension School for designing a house which she had built in Nantucket. Caroline had a lifelong passion for cooking new and exotic recipes substituting ingredients with abandon. She loved and summered for a good deal of her life on Nantucket Island and had a store called the One and Only Shop there. She was a talented sculptor, photographer, and engaged in all manner of artistic crafts and teaching them right to the end of her life. Caroline was on the verge of publishing a book on dyslexia that she had researched for many years. Her expertise at Words with Friends and Upwords made her a force to be reckoned with on the internet. While in her 90s, she drove an SUV with a moon roof, toted a cell phone and operated both a Mac and a PC out of her office. Recently, she got an Ipad touch as her latest gadget, so she could facetime with grandchildren. This amazing woman with an impish sense of humor, a drive for business ventures and love for family, lived life with gusto right to her gracious exit. She will be sorely missed by her six children, Kathy Stevens, Nat Stevens, Jennifer Dunmire, Cornelia Harris, Judith Wehner, Beth Van Belle, 12 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, as well as extended family members, and many many other relatives, friends and colleagues.

ARRANGEMENTS: In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Anna Jacques Hospital in Newburyport in her name.

Mr. John Franz, 70 Years

December 9, 1943 — September 28, 2014

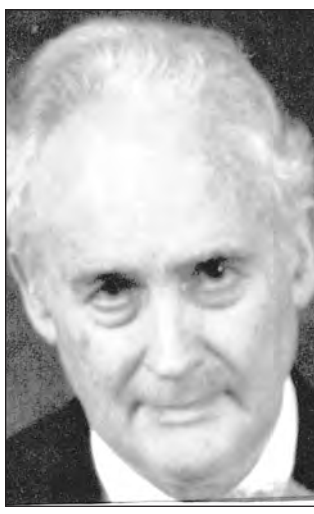

ANDOVER — Mr. John Franz, of Andover, passed away at Academy Manor Nursing Center in Andover on Sunday, September 28, 2014. He was 70-years-old.

Born in Washington, D.C., he later moved to Andover where he spent most of his life. John graduated from Central Catholic High School in 1961. He earned his bachelor's degree from Merrimack College in 1965 and his Master's degree from Northeastern University in 1967.

John retired after a 40-year, successful career at Raytheon Co. He enjoyed reading, skiing, spending time at Cape Cod, and loved ballroom dancing with the Wilmington Dance Club.

After 47 years of marriage, John is survived by his wife, Jean; and his two sons, Robert and his wife, Jen Franz of Bristol, N.H., and James and his wife, Kristin Franz of Medford; grandchildren, Olivia, Emma and Jack; brothers, Tom and his wife, Diane Franz of Kennebunkport, Maine, and William and his wife, Donna Franz of Newburyport; and many nieces and nephews.

ARRANGEMENTS: His funeral Mass will be celebrated in St.

Robert Bellarmine Church, 198 Haggett's Pond Road, Andover, on Thursday, October 2, at 11 a.m. Relatives and friends are most welcome. Calling hours were held in the Burke-Magliozzi Funeral Home, 390 North Main St., Andover, on Wednesday, October 1, from 2 to 6 p.m. Interment will held in St. Mary Immaculate Cemetery in Lawrence. In lieu of flowers, donations in John's memory may be made to the charity of your choice.

The Franz family sends special thanks to the Academy Manor Nursing Home and Life Choice Hospice for providing excellent care and support.

Lecture on inclusion at Merrimack College

Merrimack College is resuming its Building Community, Reaching for Justice Speaker Series with a lecture by William Kiernan, Ph.D., director of the Institute for Community Inclusion. ## Mom, son aim to make dyslexia a national issue

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsmen.com

An Andover mother and her son are working to decode dyslexia on a national level.

Melissa Marquis' desire to help create change began when her son, 9-year-old Ethan Toubes-Marquis, was diagnosed with the condition while in first grade.

"We noticed he wasn't only struggling to read but struggling to remember what he just read," she said. "We would struggle to read the word 'cat.' Then, we would flip the page and he would be unable to read the same word again. It was as if he had never seen it."

Despite its commonness, affecting one in every five children, dyslexia remains a largely unknown neurological-based language disorder, Marquis said. It is compared by many to being blind, for you can physically see the words but your brain is unable to make sense of them.

In witnessing the care that the condition mandates firsthand, Marquis has worked to create national change by taking to Washington, D.C.

Fourth-grader Ethan Toubes-Marquis stands in front of the United States Capitol in Washington, D.C., prior to helping lobby for Dyslexia House Resolution 456.

Their June 24 to 27 trip was to lobby for House Resolution 456, a bipartisan bill that would call for all schools, as well as state and local educational agencies, to recognize that dyslexia has significant implications on education and must be addressed.

Originally given just a 5 percent chance of progressing to the House and Senate for consideration, the resolution now has 111 co-sponsors. If it passes the House and Senate, it will become a law.

Marquis and Ethan went with an organization they have been a part of for three years called Decoding Dyslexia.

"Decoding Dyslexia is a grassroots parents' organization formed three years ago," she said. "I joined almost at its inception. Since then, the group grew to 46 states, with 32 new states added this year alone from all across the country."

The organization's aim is to raise dyslexia awareness, empower families to support their children, inform policy makers on best practices to identify and support students with dyslexia in Massachusetts. Its goals are to require early screening for the disorder, properly train teachers on dyslexia and raise awareness of it. It also aims to create evidence-based education and remediation programs for general and special education students who show signs of dyslexia.

Now in fourth grade, Ethan is working with a private tutor who is certified in Orton-Gillingham, an intensive, one-on-one multi-sensory approach to reading. According to Marquis, research has shown that dyslexic children learn more effectively when all of their senses are employed, such as visual, auditory and kinesthetic.

"When (Ethan) was first evaluated, they couldn't even measure him, but since we had him tutored he has caught up three grade levels," Marquis said. "Nationally, the approach for identifying, accommodating and instructing dyslexic children is not adequate and inconsistent, hence House Resolution 456."

October is Dyslexia Awareness Month, something that both mother and son hope will help draw attention to their cause.

"I think it was important so the people in Washington understand dyslexia and how to help kids like me," said Ethan. "I thought it was fun to meet other kids like me and actually see all of the buildings and monuments."

■ POLICE LOG

Monday, Sept. 22 Incident

At 9 a.m. someone from the IRS called to report that a woman from Miami was on the phone threatening to kill herself unless she got her tax refund immediately. Police called the Miami-Dade Police Department, which went to the address the woman gave the IRS. There, a resident informed them that this had happened before, and that the same woman, who did not live at the premises, had called other federal agencies making similar statements. An investigation continues.

Wednesday, Sept. 24 Arrest

A resident of 23 Greenwood Road was arrested at 11:39 a.m. on a charge of violating a domestic protection order. The name in the police log was blacked out due to a recently passed state law that allows police to redact the names of people charged with domestic violence.

Thursday, Sept. 25 Arrest

Nikkia Ashton, 24, of 117 Cluff Crossing, Apt. 8, was arrested at 3:53 p.m. at 138 River Road and charged with possession of a Class B drug.

Accident
A Lowell Street resident reported that a car struck her fence and then fled sometime around 10:30 a.m., and may also have ripped out the cable-TV line. Police investigated and found that a guide wire holding up a utility pole had been damaged. National Grid was notified.

Incident
At 10:06 p.m. police got a transfer call from the Colorado Springs Police Department. A woman from Colorado Springs told Andover police that a woman she converses with in a brain-injury support group was threatening to overdose on pills. Police sent an ambulance to the Chestnut Court address of the woman threatening to harm herself.

She was taken to Lawrence General Hospital as a "voluntary transport," according to the police log.

Friday, Sept. 26 Incident

A caller from Fox Hill Road reported at 10:42 p.m. that a car was parked in front of her neighbor's home and five or six young people were walking back and forth to the college with flash lights. Officers Colin D. Radford and Michael C. Shanahan reported that the group checks out and had moved along.

Saturday, Sept. 27 Arrest

Michael Ralph Donlon, 31, of 8 Sroxtown Drive, Billerica, was arrested at 2:03 p.m. on Poor Street on warrant charges.

Incident
A resident of Brookfield Road reported at 12:47 a.m. that there was loud music coming from Merrimack College that was causing a disturbance. Merrimack College police were notified of the complaint, and Officer Kyle Kiberd reported that the area was quiet.

Sunday, Sept. 28 Arrest

Juan J. Nieves, 28, of 22 Fairmont St., Apt. 2nd Floor, Lawrence, was arrested at 5:57 a.m. on North Main Street and charged with malicious destruction of property in excess of $250 and disorderly conduct.

Incident
A caller from Andover Street reported at 5:58 p.m. that three youths on skateboards were going in and out of traffic and causing operators to slam on their breaks. Officer Timothy Hagerty checked the area with negative results.

Monday, Sept. 29 Arrest

Damon M. Beckerman, 19, of 8 Old South Lane, was arrested at his home at 11:56 a.m. on warrant charges.

Incidents
A caller from Maple Avenue at 1:38 p.m. reported that he was very upset and needed to speak with an officer due to town workers using vulgar language in front of his young niece and wife. Sgt. Steven Gerroir spoke with the caller and handled the situation.

A caller from Rutgers Road reported at 8:40 p.m. that there were two SUV's parked next to each other and she thought it might be a drug transaction taking place. Officer Joseph Davies responded and reported that the cars were grandparents doing an exchange of their grandchildren.

ST. JUDE'S NOVENA

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved, and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day, by the 8th day your prayer will be answered. Publication must be promised. AME

Grant brings solar power to affordable Andover home

By BILL KIRK

bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

Armed with a $145,000 state grant, students from the Greater Lawrence Technical School will be scampering across the roof of a house at 98 Andover St. next week, installing solar panels for the family that lives there.

The students — and the homeowners — are the beneficiaries of a “Learn and Earn” grant from the state that was doled out in June to train students in the craft of solar energy installation.

“Upon receiving the grant GLTS went into high gear and came up with a one-month summer program for juniors and seniors,” according to Andover resident Anil Navkal, who is also known as a “Solar Coach” in his work with Solarize Andover, a program to bring more solar installations to the town.

Over the summer, he said, the school trained 24 students, with another 60 in the pipeline for training. The company that won the Solarize Andover contract, Astrum Solar, agreed to help oversee the students as they install the panels on the Andover Street house.

“As an extension of that (training) program the school had requested that the students participate in a few installations Astrum was doing,” he said.

“Instead we thought of

This house at 98 Andover St. will soon have a solar array thanks to a state grant to the Greater Lawrence Technical School.

using 98 Andover St., the house that was built as a partnership with GLTS and ACT (Andover Community Trust) for a full solar installation.”

On Oct. 6, state, local and school officials will gather at the house for a ceremony commemorating the training grant as well as the solar installation.

The house was built by GLTS students using funds from the Andover Community Trust. It is a permanently affordable home, where a young family from Lawrence has taken up residence.

Navkal said when he first read about the house, he saw a photo of it in the newspaper and immediately realized it had a south-facing roof, which is ideal for solar panel installations. Although it appears some tall trees surrounding the property may have to be trimmed, he said, it is otherwise an ideal home for solar.

In February, he said, he got an email from Elizabeth Youngblood, the manager of the Mass. Clean Energy Commission Solarize Program indicating the availability of a MassCEC “Learn and Earn” grant, a program for high-school age students.

“I immediately contacted John Lavoie, superintendent of GLTS and we both agreed that the grant was ideally suited for the GLTS mission,” he said. “GLTS applied for the grant with strong letters of recommendation and promise of active participation in the program, if MassCEC were to give the grant.”

He said letters were sent in from the Solarize Andover Team, Astrum Solar and Tom Wu, CEO of Invaleon, a solar energy company.

On June 13, Gov. Patrick awarded a grant of $145,000 to develop a program the GLTS program.

“Training young people for careers in STEM will put them on the path for future success,” Patrick said at the time the grant was awarded.

“Internship programs are working to ensure that innovative Massachusetts companies have a rich pipeline of talented workers to help their businesses flourish here in the Commonwealth.”

In addition to the grant to GLTS, the governor also doled out money to Brockton High School, where 30 students are learning about various sectors of clean energy and working on projects that include building a solar-powered pump to water the school’s garden beds and installing a solar-powered weather station at the school.

The Northeastern University and John D. O’Byrne School of Mathematics and Science got the grant to educate 25 students around clean energy topics, while providing support for high school students preparing to pass Advanced Placement calculus exams, which can earn students college credit.

Navkal noted: “This is a huge success story of collaboratively creating highly relevant sustainable landmarks in Andover.”

He said six organizations worked collaboratively to make it happen, including GLTS, the Andover Community Trust, the Mass. Clean Energy Commission, Astrum Solar, Solarize Andover and the town of Andover.

“Massachusetts is a hub of innovation and having a strong talent pipeline is vital to the continued growth of our innovation economy,” said Housing and Economic Development Secretary Greg Bialecki in a statement.

Asset protection seminar for ‘boomers’ scheduled

On Thursday, Oct. 9, the Center at Pynchard/Boomer Venture will host a presentation by certified elder law attorney Patrick Curley entitled “Baby Boomer Asset Protection for your Home and Savings”. The presentation will take place at 30 Whittier Court, from 7 to 8 p.m.

The presentation will focus on strategies baby boomers and their parents can use to protect their homes and savings against the potentially devastating costs of nursing home and long-term care.

Curley is one of just two dozen attorneys in the state to have earned the designation of certified elder law

Patrick G. Curley

attorney. He serves on the Board of Directors of the state chapter of the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys, the largest elder law and estate planning organization in the Commonwealth.

The asset protection presentation is one of a series of presentations on different topics offered by the Boomer Venture Campus during the fall semester, which runs every Thursday evening through Nov. 13.

Sex offender leads police on a chase through town

By BILL KIRK

bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

A Lawrence man led police on a high-speed chase through Andover last week before crashing his car off Woburn Street and fleeing into the woods.

Anthony Allen, 48, of 60 Kendall St., Apt. 1, Lawrence, was arrested early Monday morning at 100 River St. on charges of failure to register as a sex offender, second offense, as well as speeding, operating with a suspended license, leaving the scene of property damage, operating to endanger and failure to stop for police.

Police Commander Charles Heseltine said an officer was on routine patrol on Andover Street around 11:30 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 21, when a car passed him going about 75 mph.

The patrolman pursued the vehicle, at which point the driver turned off his headlights.

He continued at a high rate of speed, crossed over the railroad tracks in Ballardvale and drove down Andover Street, heading toward the South School.

Heseltine said the officer lost sight of the car but as he approached Woburn Street, he noticed skid marks and smoke. Apparently Allen had driven across Woburn Street and crashed into the woods.

Police said Allen then fled the scene.

Officers conducted a search, which included using dogs, but were unable to locate Allen.

After the change of police shifts, another officer was on routine patrol on River Street around 1 a.m. when he saw Allen on the side of the road. He approached him and the man admitted to being the person police had been searching for, Heseltine said.

He was handcuffed and taken to the station. During booking, however, police determined that Allen had failed to notify his local police department that he had changed residences, something required of sex offenders.

He was then charged with failing to register as a sex offender, subsequent offense, Heseltine said, in addition to the motor vehicle charges. He was not injured.

SCHEDULE

questions. It is expected to be voted on at the school board's next meeting, on Oct. 9.

According to School Committee Chairwoman Annie Gilbert, it's largely the prolonged meeting process that allows for the short, three-week period of time between the initial presentation and the school board vote.

"At this point, we are simply evaluating the final recommendations that came out of that much larger process," she said. "That is why we believe three hearings over a three-week period is sufficient."

Some question why the committee was formed to begin with, saying that the current schedule was working fine for students. In fact, it was commended by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges following a visit prior to the 2012 school year.

The organization said that the semester block schedule "supports research-based instruction and the learning needs of the majority of students."

A concerned parent at last Monday's discussion said, "I'm not even quite sure what the problem is that we're trying to solve right now with the new schedule."

The reason for looking into schedule changes stems from a divide between the School Committee and the Andover Education Association during their 2011-2014 contract negotiations.

The two sides were in dispute over the addition of another class to the workloads of teachers.

At the time, the School Committee viewed the current three-and-three schedule as ideal, with teachers leading six classes over the year in a two-semester format.

The teachers union, however, felt a three-and-two schedule was better, which entailed five classes over the year under a block schedule.

"We agreed that if teachers and administrators felt there was a better way to keep that instructional time intact," Gilbert said, "that they could explore that, and that if they came forward in a given timetable with a recommendation, we'd consider it."

In foregoing block scheduling for an eight-day, year-round rotation, teachers in the new schedule would instruct five classes over the school year in addition to five "H-Blocks" over the eight-day cycle.

H-Block is a time designated for teachers to connect with students in smaller groups, something believed to build teacher-student relationships.

Parent concerns about the new schedule include prerequisites for Advanced Placement classes, the management of nearly 2,000 students into a productive H-block period and the transitional phase, among others.

They're topics that the Committee says it will look further into. Unanswered questions are expected to be answered prior to the vote, set for Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. in the School Administration Building.

In order for the new schedule to take effect for the 2015-16 school year, the recommendation would need to be approved by the School Committee and by the AEA prior to a Dec. 1 deadline, according to AEA President Kerry Costello.

Once accepted by the School Committee, bargaining would begin immediately, she said.

'Walk in The Park' to benefit Lazarus House

Walkers step out in a previous Hike for Hope.

COURTESY PHOTO

Help a neighbor, help a friend. You can give people living in poverty a helping hand by putting together a team of walkers to fundraise for the 15th Annual Hike for Hope on Sunday, Oct. 5, 2014 at The Park on Bartlet Street, Andover. After finishing the 3-mile walk around the picturesque town there will be family-fun activities and a free barbecue lunch. Live music will be provided by the band Speechless, a jazz ensemble from Boston.

Registration is open and online at www.hikeforhope.org. You can make a difference in someone's life by sponsoring yourself for the first $15 and then reaching out

The Hike for Hope was initiated in 1999 and is an annual family-centered fall event. This year the annual walk-a-thon will begin and end on the Town Common on Chestnut Street in Andover. Teams, individuals, church groups, schools and local businesses will join together to raise money and awareness for Lazarus House.

Proceeds from the hike support all the programs and services provided by Lazarus House Ministries, including emergency shelter, food and clothing, transitional housing, advocacy, health services, education and work preparation to permanently break the cycle of poverty.

This year's goal is $200,000. More at: www.hikeforhope.org.

Catching up with a young artist

Seventh-grader staging solo exhibit at Mass. State House

By JUDY WAKEFIELD
jwakefield@andovertownsman.com

With hopes to go to Harvard University, schoolwork is extremely important to a local 12-year-old seventh-grader who's excelling in math and science, earning placement in advanced classes at Austin Prep School.

Only in the summer does Sana Nadkarni of Andover allow herself to paint, but she brings the same passion to her palette as she does her schoolwork. Next week, political types get a glimpse of that palette as she's staging a solo art exhibit at the Massachusetts State House. She is the youngest artist to have a show there.

"I usually do paintings around topics like NASA and economics, but now I'm thinking older and being more philosophical ... but I always listen to brain and heart for my artwork," she giggled when talking about the pieces in her show.

The exhibit reception is on Wednesday, Oct. 8, in Room 34, from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Sana, who attended High Plain Elementary School, started painting at age 8, and her earliest artworks became the logo for her parents' medical practice at Pentucket Medical Associates. Her paintings eventually went on permanent display, and numerous student art awards followed.

She was the 2012 Massachusetts winner for the prestigious Nicholas Green Distinguished Student Award presented by the National Association of Gifted Children. There is one winner per state.

Last summer she was commissioned by Lawrence General Hospital to produce 10 paintings for the pediatrics and emergency room units, earning a $5,000 college scholarship for her work.

She has done numerous solo art exhibits and won a state book mark contest when she was 9 (Andover Townsman, May 19, 2011).

"I paint what I want ... my interests are diverse," she said. "And I love to do it."

Trail named for conservationist Al Retelle

The Andover Conservation Commission voted unanimously to rename the Shaktis Reservation in honor of Al Retelle, who died last February.

A dedication ceremony will be held on Saturday, Oct. 4, at 10 a.m. in Retelle's honor. Retelle was a strong advocate of open space and an avid outdoorsman who gave over 60 years of service to different town committees and boards. Retelle was the first chairman of the Andover Conservation Commission after making a plea at the 1960 town meeting for open space preservation. He was also a well known local businessman.

He owned Retelle's Tree Service Company in Andover. He was also a past president and warden of AVIS and president of The Merrimack Valley Bird Club for 45 years. He was well respected for his hard work, dedication and benevolence.

There will be a walking tour of the reservation and event speakers include Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, Fred Snell from AVIS, Conservation Commission Chairman Donald Cooper and Merrimack Valley Bird Club secretary Donna Cooper.

The reservation is located at the corner of River Road and Brundrett Avenue, and parking may be accessed along the side of Brundrett Avenue.

For more information, call Conservation Commissioner Ellen Townson at 978-475-0180.

True faith and spiritualism in Andover

Gail Ralston

Andover Historical Society

Today when we hear about mediums, séances and contacting the dead, many view these practices with a healthy dose of skepticism. Yet the spiritualism of the 1800s served a legitimate purpose for many of our country's learned thinkers as well as folks in Andover.

Spiritualism gained popularity in the 1840s and peaked in the years following the Civil War. By 1897, there were more than 8 million followers in the United States and Europe, mostly from the middle and upper classes. The practice began to lose adherents in the 1920s, although it still exists in various forms even today.

Those who practiced spiritualism were self-named "The Society of Free Thinkers." Theirs was a "liberating faith" that came without the hierarchy and rigid dogma of established churches. (You can see why that didn't sit well in the conservative Andover!)

Spiritualists believed that after death, the departed had the ability and, indeed, the inclination to communicate, through mediums, with those living — but only if the living opened the "gates" of communication.

The image of these "gates" figured prominently in Andover author Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' novel, "The Gates Ajar," written to give comfort to families, and more pointedly to women, in the aftermath of the Civil War. Phelps' novel was second in popularity in the 1800s to Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

But as much as spiritualism gained acceptance in the country, just as many felt the practice was the work of the devil, equating the spiritualism of 1865 with the practice of witchcraft, even going so far as to claim the practice of spiritualism was the cause of the Civil War! Why, then, did so many people risk "hell and damnation" to turn to spiritualism?

Before the Civil War, men and women turned to spiritualism for many reasons. The practice was strongest in the northeast, where it attracted abolitionists, feminists and adherents of other radical social movements. Spiritualism, through mediums, also provided one of the first forums in which American women could address mixed public audiences.

Harriet Beecher Stowe and husband Calvin, a professor at the Theological Seminary in Andover, loved using the "planchette," a version of today's Ouija Board. The planchette was extensively marketed in the 1860s, particularly in the years immediately following the Civil War.

Spiritualism also attracted West Parish Church

The Fox sisters were popular mediums of the 1800s.

member John Russell. The Russell family of the 1800s were all active members of the church. While John was the only one who professed spiritualist beliefs, he was clearly concerned about his church and family's reaction to those beliefs. In a letter to the editor of the spiritualist newspaper Banner of Light, John wrote:

"You ask me about Spiritualism in Andover... You know that old Andover is the headquarters of Orthodoxy, and of course the churches are fenced in stronger here perhaps than in most other places... But, there are quite a number of investigators of this new light to give cheer and comfort to all those who have cause and independence enough to think for themselves."

Following the Civil War, many gained a new reason to turn to spiritualism: that being the unprecedented number of deaths and the many unanswered questions surrounding those deaths. It is a fact that on the battlefield most soldiers died alone, anonymous and without comfort, their families unaware of their fate.

While Andover did have delegations sent to hospitals and even the battlefield to report back to anxious loved ones, many families were forced to deal with no news at all. It is estimated that over 40 percent of the Civil War dead were never identified. With little hope of news forthcoming, spiritualism promised comfort to those wondering about both the earthly and spiritual fate of their departed.

The spiritualist newspaper, Banner of Light, took to printing messages from the dead, and continued to do so for many years following the war. For believers, these messages affirmed that their loved ones were neither dead nor lost. These messages gave hope that the dead were struggling to reach out to those left behind in order to console them with the reassurance basic to spiritualism's core: "I Still Live!"

Opinion

Tax troubles reflect poorly on L'Italien campaign

As a state legislator, Barbara L'Italien had the "tax and spend" routine down pat. In 2009, the Andover Democrat even supported a 25-percent increase in the sales tax -- from 5 percent to 6.25 percent -- that has hurt Merrimack Valley retailers competing with "tax free" New Hampshire nearby.

And when voters removed her from office in 2010, state Treasurer Steve Grossman provided her with a soft landing — a $100,000 a year taxpayer-funded post in the Treasury for which she was marginally qualified.

L'Italien was good at all that taxing and spending. But at paying her taxes — not so much. It was while she working in the well-paid Treasury post that L'Italien and her family ran into some trouble with the state Department of Revenue. L'Italien owes $4,570 in back taxes from 2011 and $1,179 from 2012 — with another $1,872 in "statutory additions" for a total tax debt to Massachusetts of $7,618.

In response, the DOR has placed a lien on L'Italien's 5 Harper Circle home for non-payment of income tax.

After reporter Bill Kirk reported this story last week, L'Italien became angry, insisting that this was not a story and that lots of people have difficulties with the state DOR or the federal Internal Revenue Service.

That's very true. A great many people do have tax troubles. But few of them are, as L'Italien is, running for state Senate, a post from which she will have the ability to levy more taxes on the rest of us and spend more money from the public treasury.

L'Italien said the tax debt resulted from a medical emergency that created financial problems for her family. She and her husband dispute the amount that the DOR says they owe, but in any case have arranged a repayment plan. If the L'Italiens win their appeal, any money they are determined to have overpaid will be returned to them.

Meanwhile, despite her tax debt. L'Italien has loaned her campaign $13,000 in three separate installments over the past several months, $8,000 in August alone.

If she has the money to loan her political campaign, she ought to be using it to pay off her taxes.

The taxes owed and the repayment plan are one thing. L'Italien's reaction to the story is another.

L'Italien said she did not know that a lien has been placed on her home. But a DOR spokesman told Kirk that the placement of a lien is a multi-step process involving notifications at several points. Maryann Merigan of the DOR told Kirk the state has a lengthy process of notification.

In an email, Merigan wrote that there is a four- or five-step process of notifying someone, starting with a "notice of assessment issued to taxpayer with tax obligation." If the mail is returned, the address is updated. If there is still no response, a notice of demand is sent out 45 days later. If there is still no response after that, a "notice of intent to lien" is sent out 30 or more days later. Then, after another 30 or more days, a lien is placed on the property.

L'Italien's opponent in the 2nd Essex and Middlesex state Senate race, Andover selectman Alex Vispoli, says it is unlikely that L'Italien did not know of the lien.

L'Italien's campaign then went after Vispoli, claiming that he had liens placed on his property in 1992 and 1996 when he lived in Norfolk. Vispoli contacted his attorney and determined that these were not liens but rather lien certificates — documents attesting that there are no liens on the property, needed when Vispoli first refinanced then later sold his home.

L'Italien, in fact, had a municipal lien placed on her home in 2007 for non-payment of property taxes. The taxes have since been paid and the lien lifted.

L'Italien accused Vispoli of "gutter politics." We believe she may have the roles reversed.

WEB QUESTION

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

After two years of study, a team of teachers, administrators and parents has proposed a new class schedule for Andover High. Should the School Committee vote to adopt the new schedule when it meets next week?

Yes, the new schedule will promote academic growth and create opportunities for students and teachers to build relationships.

No, the current schedule is perfectly fine and has been praised by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

LAST WEEK'S QUESTION

Once again, the Board of Selectmen is considering whether to move the Town Yard from its current, downtown location. But it could cost up to $30 million. How much should the town spend?

$30 million is fine. Our town workers deserve a state-of-the-art Town Yard. 1 vote (1.5 percent)

$20 million seems more in line. It won't raise taxes as much. 1 vote (1.5 percent)

$10 million is a fair number. It's better for taxpayers and still good for town workers. 17 votes (25.8 percent)

I'd spend $0 on a new town yard. Leave it where it is and maintain existing buildings. 47 votes (71.2 percent)

COMPILED BY
SUSAN MCKELLEGIT

Here's a look back at what was happening in town this same week at key points over the last 100 years, exactly as reported in the pages of the Andover Townsman:

100 Years Ago Oct. 2, 1914

Three young girls from Nashua, N.H., by the names of Dionne, Provencal and Blanchard, were sent to their homes this week by Chief Smith, who had been communicated with by their parents. The girls had run away from home and were staying in Abbott Village on Cuba Street.

The game on the playstead tomorrow afternoon between the Thistles, undefeated junior soccer league champions, and the Olympic juniors of Lawrence will be well worth seeing. Neither team has lost a game this year, and they are tied for the lead in the league. This is the only soccer game in town and there should be a large attendance.

A democrat wagon belonging to Warren Moorar of West Andover was purloined last Monday evening. If the gentleman or men who borrowed the vehicle will return the same, he or they will be suitably rewarded, as Chief Smith is interested in the case.

75 Years Ago Sept. 28, 1939

Professor Rupert Emerson of Harvard University, who will be the speaker at the first all luncheon meeting of the Andover League of Women Voters on Monday, is well qualified to treat his subject, "American Neutrality." The Andover League expects a large crowd to hear Professor Emerson. The luncheon will be at the Andover Country Club, at 12:45 p.m. Mrs. Harold Rutter is in charge of the arrangements committee.

The Andover bypass claimed another life last Saturday afternoon when Francis J. McDonough of 49 Elm St. died at the Lawrence General Hospital shortly after his car collided with a truck about a quarter mile from the North Andover line. The young man never regained consciousness. His death came as a severe shock to his many friends and to the friends of his bride of a year, the former Dorothy O'Connor, who is the popular bookkeeper at the Andover News company.

50 Years Ago Oct. 1, 1964

"We are simply appalled... people are aghast..." With these disconnected phrases a resident from the area near to Irvin Hilton's Rt. 125 Texaco station attempted to describe the neighborhood reaction to the senseless Tuesday slaying of the 44-year old gasoline station operator. Hilton was stabbed, then shot six times at approximately 3:40 p.m. Tuesday, the final two shots being fired while he was at the entrance to the lubritorium in full view of four witnesses. Police believe the shooting to be the result of an abortive holdup attempt.

"This is what $4.8 million looks like!" The School Building Committee unveiled architects' drawings of the proposed 1,200-student high school Wednesday at the first of two public information meetings being held to help explain the design and facilities of the secondary school building to voters who will have to make a decision on it at an October 19 Town Meeting. The plan calls for a four-story classroom unit with library, cafeteria and gymnasium in separate but attached units. It is scheduled for construction in 1965 on ground off Shawsheen Road, near the present high school.

25 Years Ago Sept. 28, 1989

The J. Everett Collins Center is efficiently managed, according to a recent survey by the Andover Endowment for the Arts, which runs the facility. The survey, compiled by Jared S.A. Clark, an AEA board member, reviewed six performing arts centers in Massachusetts, including the Collins Center.

Andover Country Club neighbors, who successful closed public access to the private club's restaurant, will have to fight the same battle again next week before the Zoning Board of Appeals. Town officials expect West Andover residents to be upset and confused by the Andover Country Club's request for a special permit to open Trumper's restaurant to the public.

Emotional vote will cost the taxpayers

Editor, Townsman:

Does anyone else in Andover think it is time for a reality check on the expense of the Youth Center?

A recent editorial in The Eagle-Tribune (Sept. 25) was right on the money about the money. We, the citizens of Andover, have been (and still are) being led down the "but it's for the kids" path. It is amazing, embarrassing and expensive!

I support youth activities. I have, and still do, spend many hours every week in support of youth sports (mostly soccer). I have done this for over 40 years and plan to continue while I can. There is, however, a line, a line wherein crossing over means we have gone too far! We have crossed over and there is no end of our travel in sight - no end to the amount of financial support to which the town will become obligated. The steel is up and we are told we are ONLY $700,000 — that's Seven Hundred Thousand Dollars — short NOW!

It's not the end. We are told that there should be several more employees to fully support the building's mission. No one has yet mentioned the cost of daily maintenance, heat, lights, electricity, water, equipment and long-term capital expenses. These will represent thousands every year, most assuredly not covered by the apparently drying-up public support. I thought it was agreed at a Special Town Meeting that the town was not to be on the hook for any further expenses and that none of the town's donation was to be spent until the Andover Youth Foundation addressed the remaining costs. I must have misheard! The $7 million dollars (and certainly more) that will ultimately be spent on the building, at a very reasonable rate of return could have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars in perpetuity and afforded hundreds of Andover's youth membership at the local, newly expanded YMCA. It is already built, manned, maintained and designed for the same mission and, moreover, ready to serve. Who'd have thought?

This note will not be popular with some — others will agree — but my drill here is how this was poorly thought out and resulted in an emotional vote that will be very costly to the taxpayers. We should have been able to do better!

Vispoli's record reflects devotion to fundamental values

Editor, Townsman:

Values are the foundation upon which our society operates. These values are what drive a person's behavior, and from this, positive and beneficial actions emerge.

And so it is with Alex Vispoli, with a life grounded in fundamental values that have resulted in so many benefits to our community. Values like integrity, respect and caring for others, innovations, teamwork and a keen sense of community. You could easily summarize who Alex really is by the simple phrase "Non Sibi" — not for self.

His record to date reflects these values, as both a successful businessman and an Andover elected official. Anyone who knows Alex or has worked with him can see these values shining through by virtue of what he accomplished and how he did it.

A few of his accomplishments reflecting these values over his career life to date include:

— Applying his private-sector solution skills to the public sector, as he has done for many years as an Andover selectman.

— Creating new jobs via an improved economic business environment.

— Refusing to take legislative perks and per diems.

My vision of Alex as our state senator is that his values will drive him to work hard for all of us. He will not fear crossing the aisle to achieve a compromise. He will seize opportunities when they arise, and he will create opportunities where none exist.

Most importantly, I expect him to chip away at the one-party system that dominates the power structure on Beacon Hill.

Squeeze on middle-income families is the issue

Editor, Townsman:

Two positive, albeit perhaps unintended, consequences result from last week's Townsman article, "L'Italien, Vispoli Spar Over Her Unpaid State Taxes." First, we have the opportunity to, as the American sociologist, C. Wright Mills said, see private troubles as public issues. The Townsman article reminds us of the terrible financial struggle of hardworking Americans who juggle: caring for aging parents, supporting children living with disabilities, trying to maintain full-time employment while investing in a career to secure quality of life for themselves and their family. Part of this struggle is due to wages having not kept up with the cost of living and the soaring cost of medical care — which has impacted people's ability to pay taxes and yes, to keep their homes. This has become so serious, it has been referred to as "the other foreclosure crisis." (Source: CNN Money, July 11, 2012.)

According to a recent article by the Associated Press, "The squeeze is making it harder for middle-income families to build savings. The median net worth of families in the middle 20 percent of incomes fell 17 percent from 2010 to 2013, according to the Federal Reserve's Survey of Consumer Finances. (Source: Associated Press, Sept. 27, 2014. Christopher S. Rugaber.)

The second consequence of the article is to make a compelling argument for voters to support the candidate who not only empathizes with this issue but also begins to develop policies to support Americans in this struggle. Rather than shame any individual and marginalize them as an outlier and delinquent, I encourage us to look at the broader context and structural issues that cause such family economic struggles including liens and losing our homes.

Good people doing good work are having difficulty making ends meet in middle America. The candidate that understands this firsthand — yet remains committed to public service and seeks public office despite more personally lucrative options — gets my vote — and hopefully the votes of others.

'Dug-up dirt' not relevant to voters

Editor, Townsman:

I am appalled by Alex Vispoli's lowball attempt to drag the 2nd Essex and Middlesex state senatorial campaign into the gutter. Vispoli's comments in last week's Townsman were a personal attack on his opponent, School Committee member Barbara L'Italien, and worse, on her children and family.

Vispoli's "shocking" story becomes a non-story on page 5, where we read that the family's dispute regarding the amount of a tax refund was caused by "a personal family medical situation," in L'Italien's words. It has long since been addressed and is being resolved. Yet Vispoli trumpets that this dug-up dirt is somehow relevant to voters.

Such lowball tactics have no place in this district or in the Town of Andover. Let's stick to real issues, like maintaining funding for our public schools so that our kids can be properly educated, helping our seniors to heat their homes and pay for their medications, and creating jobs right here in the Merrimack Valley so that families can afford to stay here. Those are the kinds of issues that this voter cares about.

Near-death experience provides inspiration for artist Series of mixed-media paintings on display at Boston gallery

By SHANNON FLYNN
Correspondent

Gayle Caruso's heart stopped during a routine operation.

While she was close to death, the Andover artist found inspiration.

"It's trying to recreate the colors I had seen and the falling and the white light," Caruso said.

Her pieces inspired by the experience are on display now at the Bromfield Gallery in Boston through Nov. 2. This show features 100 pieces, hence its name "Diving Light: 100 Kinds of Light." In all, there are 1,000 pieces in Caruso's "Divine Light" collection — all of which will go on display at Merrimack College in March 2015.

Caruso's "Divine Light," mixed media pieces are all done on 11-by-14-inch photographs of the Giotto paintings in the Scrovegni Chapel in Padua, Italy.

According to Caruso, each painting differs in color, space and sharpness.

"It starts with a free-falling image, and the last 100 is just about recreating that light I saw," Caruso said.

Caruso began the series of mixed-media paintings while attending an art workshop in Vermont. She was assigned to create 100 paintings in one week.

When she finished the 100 pieces in three days, Caruso's instructor told her to then create 1,000.

"Once you keep doing something like that you kind of let go of the image and you just work without thinking," Caruso said.

The 1,000 pieces in the "Divine Light" series took Caruso two years to complete.

Caruso began her journey as an artist at the age of 50, when she graduated from the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

"It was something I wanted to do but my family was first and I wanted to raise my kids, and then go to art school," Caruso said.

Her "Divine Light" series, like all her art, is "interior" work, as she describes it.

"It's about recording my experiences and telling my story. It's about feeling," Caruso said.

Caruso said she hopes the pieces will allow visitors to reflect on their own personal stories.

'Playing Around' outside school

An interesting benefit for Andover High School's Drama Department scholarship fund happens Saturday, and a cast of teachers and administrators stars in this production.

"Playing Around" is a collection of 10-minute plays with performances by more than 14 AHS staffers, including principal Dr. Chris Lord and Police Officer Jason Dowd. School Superintendent Dr. Marinel McGrath is also performing and, of course, AHS Drama Director Susan Choquette is sharing her valued acting experience.

"I am in a play that requires me to say only one line which is perfect. I am in the middle of directing 'Chitty Chitty Bang Bang' so my time is short. My facial expressions go a long way," Choquette said in an email.

The show is Saturday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at West Middle School. Tickets are $20 for adults and $10 for students and seniors. The show is rated PG14 and not suitable for children under 14.

"There's no theme for the show, just a series of one acts that are mostly funny," Choquette said. "I think it is fabulous, and I hope this is something that turns out to be an annual event. The Drama Guild parents are spearheading it and it should be a great time."

The A-list of performer support clearly shows that the school's drama department, which has won numerous state drama awards and boasts Broadway and Hollywood actors among its successes, is very popular.

"We asked them and they said yes. Who doesn't want to be in the limelight? It is for a good cause and it is a different kind of attention than we usually draw," Choquette said.

A team of seven drama students will direct the plays.

"This is giving me an entirely new perspective," said Alex

ESTATE PLANNING

Marybeth McInnis 978.686.6112

Attorney Marybeth McInnis

Estate planning with the right attorney is a crucial life decision. For some people it is not one they relish having to make. Some procrastinate, and some never get around to it. Attorney Marybeth McInnis and McInnis Law Offices can take the anxiety out of making that first move.

Estate and Tax planning is what they do exclusively. Continuing their legal education constantly in this field, clients can be assured their beneficiaries will receive not only what they wish for them to receive, but all the law allows.

Attorney Marybeth McInnis, together with her father, Attorney James McInnis, believe foremost in establishing a good working relationship with clients. This happens when clients are comfortable and confident that their decisions and wishes will be heard and respected. For much of their work, McInnis Law Offices charges a flat fee so clients can feel free to explore their feelings, express their wishes, and become informed by asking questions.

Estate planning gives a person the opportunity to determine themselves, within the boundaries of the law, how their assets are distributed. Dying without a will forces the state to take charge. Children and family members in that situation are subject to the decisions of strangers. For the elderly, selecting someone they trust to have Power of Attorney is a decision that should be made while healthy and clear thinking because it is as important a decision as one can make in a lifetime.

Attorney Marybeth McInnis grew up in North Andover and continues to live in the community with her husband. She is a member of the American Bar Association, the Boston Bar Association's Estate Planning Committee, and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys. She is also a Director of the Friends of Merrimack College, Trustee of the James W. O'Brien Foundation, Inc., and is also licensed to practice in New Hampshire as well as Massachusetts.

McInnis Law Offices is at 807 Turnpike St. (Rte. 114) in North Andover. The office is comfortable and sunny with convenient parking. Call for an appointment at 978-686-6112.

Offense surges against archrival Central Catholic Golden Warriors unable to hold onto early lead

By DAVID WILLIS
dwillis@eagletribune.com

LAWRENCE — The ending was far from perfection, but for four quarters, Andover football gave the defending state champions all that they could handle and more.

Facing archrival Central Catholic, Andover football pushed the 2013 Division 1 Super Bowl champion Raiders to the limit, even holding a lead early in the fourth quarter before falling 49-35 in a thriller on Friday.

“I thought we played very well in a lot of areas,” said Golden Warriors coach E.J. Perry. “Unfortunately we couldn’t finish. But we showed a lot of positive signs and we are getting better.”

After Central struck for the first touchdown of the day, Andover rallied in dramatic fashion.

On the Warriors’ first play from scrimmage, sophomore quarterback E.J. Perry IV fooled the defense with play action and hit Alex Marshall over the middle. The speedy tight end did the rest, going 70 yards for a touchdown.

Perry IV then gave the Warriors the lead heading into halftime, rolling to the right and scrambling 12 yards for a score. After Central tied the game early in the second, Perry IV struck again with a touchdown pass to Brandon Marti.

“That long completion to Marshall was huge,” said Perry the coach. “I thought E.J. played a very good game and (Kevin) Chen played great again.”

Robert Pinault placed 10th overall in 15:42 to help Andover beat Dracut 26-31 and Lawrence 19-33 but fall to Lowell 15-47 last Wednesday. Andy Chavez was 11th (15:44) and Alex Bensley placed 12th (15:49) for the Warriors.

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY

Rothmann leads the way

Sarah Rothmann took third overall in 17:25 and Chantal Kellard was fourth in 17:31 to help Andover down Lawrence (15-50) and Lowell (27-28) but fall to Dracut (26-29) last Wednesday. Gwyneth Miner and Cate Donovan took 10th and 11th for the Warriors.

Achieving their dream

Michelle Gencorelli is living her dream this season, playing varsity soccer for Andover High after three years as a JV player. She is also sharing the experience with her close friend Jenna Kosinski.

After playing JV as juniors, Kosinski and Gencorelli make varsity opportunity count

By DAVID WILLIS
dwillis@eagletribune.com

Starting her freshman season, Michelle Gencorelli began painting the picture in her mind of the day her dream became a reality.

“As a JV player I remember watching the varsity team getting ready for games,” said Gencorelli. “Watching them on the turf after our games, under the lights with the music playing and the crowd coming in, I had this image in my mind of what it would be like if I was out there. So to have it happening now is pretty surreal.”

For three years, Gencorelli and friend Jenna Kosinski dreamed of playing varsity soccer for Andover High, while members of the Golden Warrior junior varsity team.

Finally this season, the two seniors have not only made the varsity squad, but are playing key roles for Andover, which enters the week undefeated at 4-0-3.

“I have loved soccer every day of my life since I started playing,” said Kosinski. “So there is nothing sweeter than to not only finally make the team, but to play more than I ever could have expected. I couldn’t have hoped for anything better than this.”

Kosinski has earned a job for the Golden Warriors as a defender, guarding All-Merrimack Valley Conference selection Alli Wiggins during a recent tie with Central Catholic, while Gencorelli has carved out a spot as a midfielder.

“Heading into this year I really didn’t know where I would stand because this is a very talented team,” said Gencorelli. “But I did everything I could to prove that I belonged on this team. It means so much, and it is even better to share it with Jenna.”

Rising through the ranks of youth soccer in Andover, both Gencorelli and Kosinski imagined taking the field for the Golden Warriors from an early age. After playing JV freshman and sophomore year, each believed last fall could be their season.

“I thought at the time there was a very good chance,” said Kosinski. “So I was very, very disappointed when it didn’t happen. It hurt, but I never considered quitting. I picked myself up, got back on my feet and decided I had to make the best of the year.”

Gencorelli was equally disappointed but motivated by the news.

“I had worked all the summer doing everything I could to make the varsity team,” said Gencorelli. “So it was tough to not make it. But I wasn’t going to give up on the sport. I had to put those feelings behind me.”

Andover’s Jenna Kosinski, center, makes a play on a ball earlier this season. Kosinski and close friend Michelle Gencorelli each played for the JV team as juniors, but have earned spots on the varsity team this season.

Instead of dwelling on the negative, both juniors set their focus on starting and becoming role models for the JV team, and those contributions caught the eye of varsity coach Meghan Matson.

“You could really see that they loved the game and loved being a part of this program,” said Matson, now in her 11th year as head coach. “They would do anything for the girls, and not everyone would stick with it like they did. They did so much for the JV kids and cheered so loudly during varsity games.”

But both still had their eyes on being on the field for the varsity team, and approached the offseason with fire and determination.

“Michelle and I looked at each other and said, ‘We are going to make the team!’” said Kosinski. “We did everything we could do. We were at every offseason workout trying to prove we belonged.”

Finally, on the final day of preseason tryouts, the news was delivered.

“On Aug. 30 each one of us got a letter from the coaches,” said Gencorelli. “Since I am a senior, the only team I could have made was varsity. So when I made it I was so thrilled. It felt like all my work had paid off.”

Now members of the team, the pair set out to carve out a role.

“I had always been a midfielder but I noticed Coach Matson was trying out a lot of defenders,” said Kosinski, also a captain of the ski team. “So I said I could play defense.

“They put me into the final preseason game for the last 10 minutes. My mother described me that I looked like a deer in the headlights. I was really nervous, but the better it went the more my confidence grew. Then when Michelle got into the lineup, it really started to click.”

Gencorelli has also utilized her greatest asset, the speed that has made her a member of the league champion Golden Warrior 4x100 relay team in track.

“My speed has definitely helped me a lot,” she said. “They talk about how important quickness is, so having that track speed has been a plus. When they called on me I told myself, ‘You have to prove that you belong!’”

Now that both have established themselves as members of the team, they hope to help the Warriors on a long postseason run.

“I feel so lucky to have this opportunity,” said Kosinski. “I think people have underestimated us as a team. Going out and beating North Andover and Canton and tying Central Catholic, I feel we are already proving people wrong, and I hope that we can keep doing that the rest of the season.”

TO A BRIGHTER FUTURE

As we age, not only does our skin wrinkle, but our teeth also darken. As the outer layer of enamel begins to wear away, the naturally yellow dentin lying beneath it is revealed. Although we cannot prevent this sign of aging from occurring, we can take steps to minimize it. The first such step involves visiting the dentist at least twice a year for professional cleanings to remove stains caused by smoking, coffee, red wine, berries, and other highly pigmented foods. Beyond that, professional tooth whitening can help increase the whiteness of your smile. This process works best on teeth that have become yellowed. Tooth whitening may not work as well to improve teeth with a grayish or brownish tinge. Whitening your teeth is considered to be one of the safest cosmetic dental procedures available. We believe that making your smile the best it can be will go a long way in improving your quality of life. At DENTISTRY BY DESIGN, we are currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 978.475.5333 to schedule your appointment. We're located at 19 Barnard St., where you will be pleased with our "personal touch" philosophy and our dedication to your complete dental health.

P.S. If you use anti-wrinkle cream and/or have resorted to skin-rejuvenation procedures, you should have your teeth professionally whitened to match the youthful look of your skin.

Marathon legends of Team Hoyt visit South Elementary School

By TIM LIMA

tlima@andovertownsmen.com

South Elementary School welcomed Team Hoyt to speak about their decades of athletic history, the dedication necessary to overcome obstacles and the values and benefits of hard work.

On Sept. 23, Dick Hoyt and his son, Rick, affectionately referred to as Team Hoyt, who have competed in over 1,100 athletic events over the past 35 years including 32 Boston Marathons and six Ironman Triathlons, spoke to students about never giving up on their goals - despite how challenging they might be. For decades, the team has largely embodied the spirit and theme of the Boston Marathon. The image of Dick Hoyt running and pushing his son, Rick, who suffers from cerebral palsy, in his wheelchair will forever remain part of the spirit of Marathon Monday.

Since running in their 32nd and final Boston Marathon this past April, the duo has focused solely on traveling the world to speak to and educate the public about people with disabilities. They also work to promote their team motto, "Yes You Can."

'Meet the Director evening next Tuesday

Meet Amy Reese, interim special education director, along with the heads of the elementary, middle, and high school special ed programs, for a discussion about the various in-district programs. Attendees may fill out a question card available at the meeting or forward questions to andoversepac@gmail.com. The "Meet the Director" event will be Oct. 7 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the School District Offices at 36 Barlett St.

EDUCATION NOTEBOOK

Parent to Parent Speakers Series

On Thursday, Oct. 9, West Middle School will host a parent-to-parent speakers event focused on the family meeting and how to teach your child money management. The event will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

All parents want to raise children who are kind, empathetic, cooperative, respectful and who know how to handle money. A good way to accomplish this is by utilizing family meetings and teaching these valuable life skills. The lecture will be given by Vicki Hoefle, who began teaching more than 20 years ago while running a daycare center in Seattle, WA.

After parents applauded and praised her parenting techniques, Hoefle created a six-week parenting class. Two decades and thousands of success stories later, Hoefle continues to share her successes with families around the country. Hoefle's latest book is Duct Tape Parenting: A Less Is More Approach to Raising Respectful, Responsible and Resilient Kids.

More information on Hoefle can be found on her website at VickiHoefle.com.

For more information on the parent-to-parent speaker series, visit andoverp2p.com.

Destination ImagiNation

There will be a townwide information meeting on Destination ImagiNation (DI) at the Doherty Middle School on Tuesday, Oct. 7.

The meeting, held at 7 p.m., will explain how you and your child can get involved in a program that allows kids to be creative while learning tools in problem solving and teamwork, all-the-while being imaginative, original and ingenious. In doing so, the program has worked to challenge, nurture and inspire hundreds of Andover kids and tens of thousands around the world.

If you are interested in learning more, come to the information meeting or contact the Destination Imagination Coordinator at andoverkids@gmail.com. To RSVP, send an email with your child's school and grade to help group interested parents.

Bancroft Fall Social tickets on sale

Bancroft Elementary School wants you to attend its Fall Social, "New Beginnings!," held on Nov. 15 from 7:30 to 11 p.m. There will be cocktails, appetizers, a comedian (Nick at Nite's "America's Funniest Mom" Christine Hurley), dancing and a silent auction, all for $50 per person.

Silent auction items are also sought after, and will benefit the Bancroft PTO. Past items have included event tickets, sports memorabilia, as well as gift certificates to spas and restaurants. Email Merlyn Kindangen, PTO Hospitality Chair, with any questions or contributions at hospitality@BancroftPTO.org

For more information, visit the Bancroft PTO website at BancroftPTO.org.

Phillips Academy exhibit to feature high school student art from Botswana

This fall, Phillips Academy's Department of Art will display "Views from Botswana" in the Gelb Gallery of George Washington Hall on the Andover campus. The exhibit features 20 pencil, ink, colored pencil, chalk pastel, mixed media and lino print works created by students at the Goodhope Senior Secondary School in Goodhope, Botswana. The pieces depict wildlife, societal tensions and scenes from everyday life in modern and traditional Botswana.

"Views from Botswana" is free, open to the public and will be displayed through Sunday, Oct. 26. The gallery, located at 7 Chapel Ave., is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day.

A reception and gallery talk will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 15, from 7 to 8 p.m.

"Views from Botswana" is part of OneWorld Classrooms' "Boston 140" exhibit, a 250-piece collection of K-12 student art from Greater Boston and 40 countries. The exhibit, available for display in regional schools and youth programs, celebrates that K-12 students in the Greater Boston region come from 140 countries around the world. OneWorld Classrooms is a regional nonprofit that fosters global awareness and cross-cultural understanding by connecting local and global K-12 schools through the arts and technology. The exhibit at Phillips Academy will also feature videos of the students in Botswana introducing themselves and discussing their art, and videos of OneWorld Classrooms' work at K-12 schools in neighboring Namibia.

"Phillips Academy art students performed in South Africa this summer," says OneWorld Classrooms Executive Director Paul Hurteau, "so this is a great way to extend the connection to that region of the world."

For more information about OneWorld Classrooms, visit www.oneworldclassrooms.org. For more information about Phillips Academy's exhibit, visit www.andover.edu.

OUT AND ABOUT

Poison is her cup of tea

Barbara Bourgeois, an Andover resident for more than 50 years, plays Abby Brewster, one of the crazy, murderous sisters in the upcoming Spotlight Playhouse production of "Arsenic and Old Lace."

In addition to raising four children in Andover and working at Andover Dermatology (now retired), Bourgeois has been acting in community theater productions in the Boston area for 30 years.

"Abby Brewster is one of my favorite characters," says Bourgeois. "In fact, I've played Abby in three different productions of Arsenic and Old Lace!" In addition to live theater, Bourgeois has also appeared in television commercials and independent films.

Spotlight Playhouse will present "Arsenic and Old Lace" at City Hall Auditorium, 4 Summer St. in Haverhill, at 8 p.m. on October 3, 4, 10, and 11. They will also present a matinee on Sunday the 12th at 2:00 PM. Ticket are $20 for adults, $18 tickets for seniors, and can be purchased at www.SpotlightPlayhouse.org or by calling 617-470-2175.

Spotlight Playhouse was founded in 2007 with a mission of presenting professional-quality theater in the Merrimack Valley. Recent productions include "The Music Man," "Broadway on Essex" (a dinner theater cabaret) and "Lend Me a Tenor." The next performance after "Arsenic and Old Lace" will be a radio play version of "It's a Wonderful Life."

Sweet treats at Chocolate Fair

West Parish Church's annual Chocolate Fair is this Saturday, Oct. 4, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The fundraiser at the church at 129 Reservation Road will feature homemade chocolate chip cookies, brownies, cake pops, whoopee pies, Oreo balls, a chocolate fountain and more delectable treats. There will also be raffles for gift certificate and gift baskets.

All proceeds support college scholarships for the Greater Lawrence Boys and Girls Club awarded to needy youths.

Tickets for the fair are $10, $8 for students and $5 for children under 8. They are available at the church office, by calling 978-475-3902 or emailing westparish-church@verizon.net, or at the door.

Free concert series opens Saturday

Terri and George Kelley of Andover are preparing to key up the ninth season of their free concert series at Lawrence Public Library.

The series opens this Sunday, Oct. 5, with a program of chamber music featuring pianist Yelena Beriyeveva, cellist John Bumstead and violinist Peter Stieckel.

On Sunday, Nov. 1, Yuching Pass and Yu-Ting Li will be performing a selection of piano duets.

All concerts begin at 2 p.m. at the Lawrence library and include short talks by the artists.

The series will also be presenting a spring choral concert on May 3 at 4 p.m. at Holy Rosary (Corpus Christi) Church in Lawrence featuring New England Classical Singers and Lawrence High School Girls Ensemble.

The Kelleys are the artistic directors for the series.

The Catherine McCarthy Memorial Trust and the White Fund support the fall concerts. For information call 978-683-8222.

Nick Flynn at Writers House

Nick Flynn, a poet, playwright and author of three memoirs, will give a reading at the Writers House at Merrimack College at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 7.

His most recent book, "The Reenactments," chronicles his experience during the making of "Being Flynn," a film that stars Robert De Niro and is based on his earlier acclaimed memoir. The event, which is free and open to the public, will include a Q&A and reception.

A former ship's captain, electrician, and case worker with homeless adults, Flynn is now a professor in the creative writing program at the University of Houston. His work has appeared in the New Yorker, the Paris Review and The New York Times Book Review and on National Public Radio's "This American Life"

Kirkus describes "The Reenactments" as "a truly insightful, original work," and The Los Angeles Times hails another memoir as a "disquieting masterpiece."

Flynn is also the author of a play, "Alice Invents a Little Game and Alice Always Wins," as well as the poetry collections "Some Ether," "Blind Huber," "The Captain Asks for a Show of Hands" and "My Feelings" (forthcoming). He has received awards and fellowships from The Guggenheim Foundation and The Library of Congress, among others.

The Writers House at Merrimack College is dedicated to creative writing, reading, and thinking, and is a resource for students, faculty, alumni, and the wider community.

For more information and directions, please see: www.merrimack.edu/academics/the-writers-house/

Victor Rosenbaum to play at Phillips

On Friday, Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m., the Phillips Academy Music Department will present pianist Victor Rosenbaum performing the music of Ludwig van Beethoven.

This event, free and open to the public, will take place in Cochran Chapel located on the Phillips Academy campus.

The American pianist has performed widely as soloist and chamber music performer in the United States, Europe, Asia, Israel and Russia in such prestigious halls as Tully Hall in New York

Cochran Chapel is handicapped accessible. For further information, please contact the Music Department at 978-749-4260 or email to music@andover.edu.

BARGAIN BANK OWNED HOMES
Most of these homes are in move in condition, some with granite counters and stainless steel appliances. You'll save thousands!!! The banks see them as surplus and don't care about getting the highest price (equals GREAT DEALS). Homes from $126,000 to $285,000 located all over the North Shore. These aren't available to investors and can only be sold to people looking for a home to live in (it's a special government program). Buy with as little as $3000 dollars down. (If your credit isn't perfect - no problem - late, short sales, bankruptcy - OK). Close in 21 to 120 days (smooth transactions). For all the information including addresses and pictures TEXT 978-393-1123 and type "BargainBankSN" (List available 24 hours a day 7 days a week - automated system - Updated Hourly). This exclusive service (Not available to Realtors) is a courtesy of Patrick Lydon - Lydon R.E. If you want to talk to a bank owned rep, call 978-235-1707.

CITATION ON PETITION FOR FORMAL ADJUDICATION
Docket No. ES14P2637EA
Estate of:
Jack Berberian
Date of Death: 08/04/2014
To all interested persons:
A Petition has been filed by: Daniel L. Berberian and Andover, MA and Karen Tsolakos of Cape Coral, FL requesting that the Court enter a formal Decree and Order of testacy and for such other relief as requested in the Petition.

And also requesting that: Daniel L. Berberian of Andover, MA and Karen Tsolakos of Cape Coral, FL be appointed as Personal Representative(s) of said estate to serve Without Surety on the bond.

You have the right to obtain a copy of the Petition from the Petitioner or at the Court. You have a right to object to this proceeding. To do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance and objection at this Court before: 10:00 a.m. on 11/03/2014

This is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline by which you must file a written appearance and objection if you object to this proceeding. If you fail to file a timely written appearance and objection followed by an Affidavit of Objections within thirty (30) days of the return date, action may be taken without further notice to you.

The estate is being administered under formal procedure by the Personal Representative under the Massachusetts Uniform Probate Code without supervision by the Court. Inventory and accounts are not required to be filed with Court, but the recipients are entitled to notice regarding the administration from the Personal Representative and can petition the Court in any matter relating to the estate, including distribution of assets and expenses of administration.

WITNESS, Hon. Mary Anne Sahagian, First Justice of this Court. Date: September 23, 2014
